George Washington and the American Military Tradition Don Higginbotham, 1987-10-01 In George Washington and the American Military Tradition Don Higginbotham investigates the interplay of militiaman and professional soldier of soldier and legislator that shaped George Washington's military career and ultimately fostered the victory that brought independence to our nation Higginbotham then explores the legacy of Washington's success revealing that the crucial blending of civil and military concerns characteristic of the Revolution has been variously regarded and only seldom repeated by later generations of American soldiers Washington's training between 1753 and 1755 included frontier command in the Virginia militia adjunct service to the British regulars during the French and Indian War and increasing civil service in the Virginia House of Burgesses and Continental Congress The result of this combination of pursuits was Washington's concern for the citizen behind the soldier his appreciation of both frontier tactics and professional discipline and his sensitivity to political conflict and consensus in thirteen colonies in forming a new united nation When in 1775 Washington accepted command of the Continental Army from the Continental Congress he possessed political and military experience that enabled him by 1783 to translate the Declaration of Independence into victory over the British Yet Higginbotham notes the legacy of Washington's success has sometimes been overlooked by generals concerned with professional training and a permanent military establishment and therefore apt to revere foreign heroes such as Jomini Napoleon and Bismarck more than Washington Other leaders most notably the World War II chief of staff George Marshall have recognized and implemented Washington's unique understanding of civil and military coordination In times almost wholly dominated by a military agenda Washington's and Marshall's steady subordination of soldier to citizen of strategy to legislation recalls the careful consensus of thirteen colonies in 1776
