Teaching comprehension with informational texts is a critical component of any reading program and one that many children struggle with as they progress through their schooling. Nonfiction can be overwhelming to young readers presenting them with complex vocabulary and a new density of information that may combine text, diagrams, pictures, captions, and other devices. Reality Checks: Teaching Reading Comprehension with Non Fiction K 5 offers insights into why children struggle when faced with informational reading and practical concepts, skills, and strategies that help them navigate nonfiction successfully. In this book, Tony Stead provides wonderful ways to enhance children's understanding and engagement when reading for information. He outlines practical approaches to ensure all children can become confident and competent readers of nonfiction. Part one examines effective ways to teach children how to extract the information that is explicitly stated in a text. Covered are strategies such as using prior knowledge, retelling, locating specific information, and the role of nonfiction read alouds. Part two explores interpreting information including making connections between the text, the reader, and the outside world, making inferences, and making revisions to inferences based on reflection. Part three looks at evaluating information, assisting children in developing critical reading skills, differentiating fact from opinion, locating author bias, and identifying techniques writers use to persuade readers. Part four offers an array of practical ways to reinforce and extend children's nonfiction reading skills, including working with visual information such as maps and diagrams. It also provides pre and post assessment strategies, procedures for monitoring progress, curriculum planning ideas, and instruction on guided reading.

Is That a Fact? Tony Stead, 2023-10-11 The book you are about to read is destined to be the first, middle, and maybe even the last word on nonfiction writing for young children. It is certainly a text that you will return to over and over again as you do with a beloved cookbook. From the Foreword by Tomie dePaola: Over eighty-five percent of the reading and writing we do as adults is nonfiction, yet most of the reading and writing in K-3 classrooms is fiction or personal narrative. In Is That a Fact? Teaching Nonfiction Writing K-3, Tony Stead shows you how to open the door to the rich world of nonfiction writing that goes beyond what I did: narratives and animal reports. And he convincingly demonstrates the importance of introducing nonfiction writing in the primary grades. Nonfiction inspires enthusiasm in young children because they can choose topics that are of interest to them personally. Is That a Fact? explores a variety of authentic purposes for writing nonfiction, such as describing, explaining, instructing, persuading, retelling, and exploring relationships with others. You will learn how to introduce each purpose using a variety of forms, including letters, reports, poetry, captions, directions, and interviews. Part One provides a complete overview of teaching nonfiction writing in the primary grades and includes practical ways for organizing nonfiction resources within the classroom, how to assist children in collecting information for research, ideas for helping children keep their sense of voice when writing nonfiction, a chapter on spelling with examples of how to guide students at each stage of spelling development strategies for assessment and evaluation that guide teaching and learning engagements Part Two provides five different explorations that were implemented in actual K 3 classrooms Each focuses on a specific purpose for writing nonfiction and features examples of whole class small group and independent instructional engagements a comprehensive assessment rubric that will help teachers tailor instruction to the needs of all learners an extensive resource section that includes lists of books in the exploration grouped by readability levels answers to the most commonly asked questions about teaching nonfiction writing The appendixes include a self assessment questionnaire reproducible pages for exploring specific writing forms and letters to parents Children need to be introduced to the different purposes of nonfiction writing They need to know how to plan compose revise and publish nonfiction beyond narrative Is That a Fact guides you in achieving these goals with your students

A Close Look At Close Reading Diane Lapp, Barbara Moss, Maria Grant, Kelly Johnson, 2015-01-29 The Common Core State Standards have put close reading in the spotlight as never before While elementary school teachers are certainly willing to teach students to closely read both literary and informational text many are wondering what exactly this involves Is there a process to follow How is close reading different from guided reading or other common literacy practices How do you prepare students to have their ability to analyze complex texts measured by Common Core assessments Is it even possible for students in grades K 5 to read to learn when they re only just learning to read Literacy experts Diane Lapp Barbara Moss Maria Grant and Kelly Johnson answer these questions and more as they explain how to teach young learners to be close readers and how to make close reading a habit of practice in the elementary classroom Informed by the authors extensive field experience and enriched by dozens of real life scenarios and downloadable tools and templates this book explores Text complexity and how to determine if a particular text is a right for your learning purposes and your students The process and purpose of close reading in the elementary grades with an emphasis on its role in developing the 21st century thinking speaking and writing skills essential for academic communication and required by the Common Core How to plan teach and manage close reading sessions across the academic disciplines including the kinds of questions to ask and the kinds of support to provide How to assess close reading and help all students regardless of linguistic cultural or academic background connect deeply with what they read and derive meaning from a complex text Equipping students with the tools and process of close reading sets them on the road to becoming analytical and critical thinkers and empowered and independent learners In this comprehensive resource you ll find everything you need to start their journey
