prestigious black liberal arts universities while Meharry Medical College emerged as one of the country's few training centers for African American medical professionals. Following the agricultural industrial model, Tennessee A David Lipscomb College, the instructional arm of the Church of Christ, and Roger Williams University, which trained black men and women as teachers and preachers, made important contributions to the higher educational landscape. In sum, Nashville was distinguished not only by the quantity of its schools but by their quality. Linking these institutions to the progressive and educational reforms of the era, Mary Ellen Pethel also explores their impact in shaping Nashville's expansion on changing gender roles and on leisure activity in the city, which included the rise and popularity of collegiate sports. In her conclusion, she shows that Nashville's present-day reputation as a dynamic place to live, learn, and work is due in no small part to the role that higher education continues to play in the city's growth and development.

MARY ELLEN PTHEL is the archivist and a member of the Social Science Department at Harpeth Hall School in Nashville. At Belmont University, also in Nashville, Dr. Pethel is a Global Leadership Studies Fellow and teaches in the Honors Department.

Efforts to build, rebuild, and maintain the Forum Romanum, Rome's historic urban epicenter, are likely as old as the place itself, some 2800 years. As a result, the historic significance and archaeological richness of the Forum cannot be overestimated. Despite its many changes, the Forum Romanum's survival today represents an outstanding example of cultural heritage continuity. Its highest possible protection status among monuments conservation agencies in Italy and its early listing on UNESCO's World Heritage List in 1980 are testaments to this. Due to its remarkable physical survival, the Forum Romanum has been the object of extensive research, documentation, restoration, and preservation efforts over the past two centuries, especially. The sophistication of these measures evolved to include a wide range of expertise. Lay interest among antiquarians and architects in Rome's past from the Renaissance through the eighteenth century was supplanted by the emerging new disciplines of archaeology, architectural restoration, and museology. From the late nineteenth century, corresponding advancements in archaeological method and conservation theory and science were increasingly applied. From this time on, as well, expectations for preserving and presenting the Forum Romanum were high, the famous site being a matter of intense Roman pride, political interest, and serving as a must-see destination for visitors to Rome. Leading historians, archaeologists, and conservators have been central to the story of the Forum's survival and interpretation. While numerous noted antiquarians and historians preceded him, the architect and archaeologist Giacomo Boni (1859-1925) was unusual, even prescient, in his approach and treatment of the place during his tenure as director of excavations of the Forum Romanum from 1898 until 1925. His combined talents as an architect, archaeologist, and conservator set a standard at the time for careful research, thorough documentation, and responsible conservation measures. The sponsors of the DHARMA conference have wisely chosen to focus on archaeological research and conservation in the Forum during Giacomo Boni's tenure, since his work reflects early best practices in researching, preserving, and interpreting such places. To frame the discussion some precedents and influences of the work of Giacomo Boni are offered      The Oxford Handbook of Japanese Politics Robert Pekkanen, Saadia M.
