

Below are 100 journal prompts related to world history and current events. These daily entry tasks "Do Now's" can be used in most World History Curriculums and are easy to adjust to make them relatable to your students. Feel free to use them for reflection, analysis, and exploration of the past and present events that have shaped our world. I always love a good conversation starter in my World History classes.

Debbie Zacarian and Michael Silverstone explore what an empowered student looks like in our increasingly diverse contemporary schools and prompt educators to examine their own relationship to empowerment. The book's evidence-based strategies and authentic examples show you how to foster an inclusive culture of agency, self-confidence, and collaboration that will give each of your students, regardless of race, culture, language, socioeconomic status, abilities, sexuality, or gender, the opportunity, responsibility, and tools to become an active learner, thoughtful community member, and engaged global citizen. Whether you're a preservice teacher, a classroom novice, or a veteran, you'll find the practical guidance you'll need to create inclusive and empowering physical learning spaces, set up self-directed learning, and promote positive interdependence. Promote student self-reflection. Teach the skills of collaboration. Foster the self-advocacy that fuels deeper, more autonomous learning. Partner more effectively with families and the community to support student empowerment. Making Citizens

Beth C. Rubin, 2012-05-23 Can social studies classrooms be effective makers of citizens if much of what occurs in these classrooms does little to prepare young people to participate in the civic and political life of our democracy? Making Citizens illustrates how social studies can recapture its civic purpose through an approach that incorporates meaningful civic learning into middle and high school classrooms. The book explains why social studies teachers, particularly those working in diverse and urban areas, should infuse civic education into their teaching and outlines how this can be done effectively. Directed at both pre-service and in-service social studies teachers and designed for easy integration into social studies methods courses, this book follows students and teachers in social studies classrooms as they experience a new approach to the traditional history-oriented social studies curriculum using themes, essential questions, discussion, writing, current events, and action research to explore enduring civic questions. Following the experiences of three teachers working at three diverse high schools, Beth C. Rubin considers how social studies classrooms might become places where young people study, ponder, discuss, and write about relevant civic questions while they learn history. She draws upon the latest sociocultural theories on youth civic identity development to describe a field-tested approach to civic education that takes into consideration the classroom and curricular constraints faced by new teachers. America's Story 3 (Teacher Guide) Angela O'Dell, 2017-11-10

A Charlotte-Mason Inspired Journey Through American History America's Story 3 concludes the exciting journey through American History as students review America's rich history, experience the excitement of discovery and invention, as well as the hardships of the Great Depression, and examine the challenges our nation still faces. Easy for teachers, exciting for students, America's Story 3 is designed to be easy to use for teachers as your student embarks on an exciting adventure through American history while learning to retell history through the use of oral-written narration. Sketch their way through historical scenes, create their own maps, and compile a timeline from the early 1900s to Modern Times. America's Story 3 Teacher Guide includes suggested daily schedule, saving you time. Student worksheets for narration, oral-written sketching, map adventures, timelines, optional digging deeper activities, special project ideas, review sheets, answer keys. 3-hole punched.
