Engineer Manual, 1998-08-01 This Engineer Manual EM describes the Technical Project Planning TPP process for identifying project objectives and designing data collection programs at hazardous toxic and radioactive waste sites The TPP process helps ensure that the requisite type quality and quantity of data are obtained to satisfy project objectives that lead to informed decisions and site closeout The TPP process can be used from investigation through closeout at small simple sites as well as large complex sites The TPP process is a critical component of the U S Army Corps of Engineers USACE quality management system that meets the American National Standard for planning the collection and evaluation of environmental data This EM is intended for use by USACE project managers and both technical and contractor personnel for implementation of Engineer Regulation ER 5 1 11 Performance Evaluation (PE) Program Robert L. Davis, 2001-02 This Engineer Manual EM provides specific guidance procedures criteria and tools for implementation of the U S Army Corps of Engineers US ACE Performance Evaluation PE Program Performance evaluation of analytical chemistry laboratories is recommended to ensure that technically competent and reliable laboratories are employed to generate analytical data of acceptable quality This EM is intended for use by USACE personnel as a critical companion document to ER 11 10 1 263 Developing Flexibility Through Alternative Project Delivery Methods for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Project Management Business Process Brian Thomas Williams, 2018 Inflexibility failure to adapt technology and overly regulatory processes frustrate construction industry productivity and reduce the likelihood that large infrastructure projects will be delivered on schedule and on budget. Divergence from entrenched project delivery methods can provide flexibility to project managers and offers advantages for improving quality, collaboration, costs, and timeliness. The objective of this research is to provide the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers USACE recommendations for their Project Management Business Process (PMBP). This study reviews the current state of project management in USACE, conducts a structured systems architecture analysis of the PMBP, evaluates USACE project statistics, assesses alternative project delivery methods through a literature review, and provides case studies to consider the implementation impediments of alternative methods for public and private projects. USACE serves as the nation's largest public engineering agency with responsibilities in military construction, civil works, water navigation, environmental restoration, and disaster response. This research concludes with recommendations for selecting alternative project delivery methods best fit to meet the distinct needs of each USACE business program. Explicitly, the application of Integrated Project Delivery is best suited for highly specialized technical projects for military construction and interagency support but also presents contractual challenges not yet adapted for USACE. Public-Private Partnerships show promise for possible future implementation in civil works projects but require further refinement through the USACE Pilot Program. Lastly, Construction Management at Risk is the most mature alternative method for USACE and can provide Project Managers with additional options in fast tracking and early contractor involvement. Essentially, the flexibility of PMBP project delivery should match the vast diversity of USACE's missions.
