

Designation: F2326 – 04(Reapproved 2009)

Standard Test Method for Collection and Analysis of Visible Emissions from Candles as They Burn¹

This standard is issued under the fixed designation F2326; the number immediately following the designation indicates the year of original adoption or, in the case of revision, the year of last revision. A number in parentheses indicates the year of last reapproval. A superscript epsilon (ϵ) indicates an editorial change since the last revision or reapproval.

INTRODUCTION

During the development of this test method with a specially manufactured “standardized” candle, variability of candle burn behavior was observed that introduced a wide statistical variation in the overall test results from a single design. Variability in testing different types of candle products would introduce even greater variability, that is, a pillar candle comprised of 60°C (140°F) melting point wax would not, and would not be expected to, show the same burn behavior as a jar candle comprised of 54.4°C (130°F) melting point wax. It is believed that a significant database of candle burn performance, based on each type of candle and formulation format, would be required before one could determine whether a statistical basis could be developed for pass/fail criteria for visible smoke emissions from candles. This method is intended to provide candle manufacturers a standard procedure to use during the development of candle designs and formulations to compare relative smoking/burn behavior. This method neither implies nor sets a standard level for visible smoke emissions for any candle type or formulation.

1. Scope

1.1 This test method covers the collection and analysis of visible emissions from indoor use candles as they burn.

1.2 The test is to be used to compare relative smoke/burn behavior during development of candle designs and formulations.

1.3 This test method may not be suitable for multiple wick candles; tapers and candles intended to be burned while floating on water commonly known as “floaters.”

1.4 This standard does not purport to address all of the safety concerns, if any, associated with its use. It is the responsibility of the user of this standard to establish appropriate safety and health practices and determine the applicability of regulatory limitations prior to use.
