

STUDY ABROAD PERSONAL STATEMENT SAMPLE

Being international relations major is about more than simply mediating talks between two countries. For me, an integral part of the job is also to understand the culture and the people on all sides. As a child, I traveled around the world with my parents, and gained a firsthand perspective of living in a variety of different situations. As a high school senior and then as an undergraduate, I continued my work internationally by volunteering abroad each summer. These experiences have taught me so much about myself and the world, but perhaps most important is that people are much more similar than they could ever imagine. I hope to be able to enhance my understanding of international policy and relations through a study abroad experience I will never forget.

As a volunteer in El Salvador and then Brazil, I witnessed the growing pains of nations seeking to keep up with a growing global economy. In El Salvador, I worked with refugees from violence in the capital city. Many of them were children which had never received the education that I have taken for granted all my life. In Brazil, I had the opportunity to interact with a village of indigenous Brazilians, who have lived in their traditional ways for hundreds of years. Cataloging their experiences and knowledge of local plants showed me that modernization does not necessarily correlate with advancement of a society. In the future, I plan on continuing my work abroad, gaining new perspectives and seeking to understand different populations

The opportunity to study abroad in Luxemburg is about more than simply going somewhere new to continue my undergraduate studies. The International Relations program is among the top-ranked programs in the world, and the dedication of the faculty towards creating an immersive experience for students will help me to integrate my international experience with classroom concepts. My goal is to become an ambassador in the future, and I know that this study abroad experience at the University of Luxemburg will significantly augment my understanding and love of the field.
