EPA-600/8, 1980-08      Erosion and Sediment Transport Measurement in Rivers Jim Bogen, Tharan Fergus, D. E. Walling, 2003      An Approach to Water Resources Evaluation of Non-point Silvicultural Sources, 1980      Submarine Mass Movements and Their Consequences Yasuhiro Yamada, Kiichiro Kawamura, Ken Ikehara, Yujiro Ogawa, Roger Urgeles, David Mosher, Jason Chaytor, Michael Strasser, 2011-10-13

Submarine mass movements represent major offshore geohazards due to their destructive and tsunami generation potential. This potential poses a threat to human life as well as to coastal nearshore and offshore engineering structures. Recent examples of catastrophic submarine landslide events that affected human populations including tsunamis are numerous e.g. Nice airport in 1979, Papua New Guinea in 1998, Stromboli in 2002, Finneidfjord in 1996 and the 2006 and 2009 failures in the submarine cable network around Taiwan. The Great East Japan Earthquake in March 2011 also generated submarine landslides that may have amplified effects of the devastating tsunami. Given that 30% of the World's population live within 60 km of the coast, the hazard posed by submarine landslides is expected to grow as global sea level rises. This elevated awareness of the need for better understanding of submarine landslides is coupled with great advances in submarine mapping, sampling and monitoring technologies. Laboratory analogue and numerical modeling capabilities have also developed significantly of late. Multibeam sonar, 3D seismic reflection and remote and autonomous underwater vehicle technologies provide hitherto unparalleled imagery of the geology beneath the oceans, permitting investigation of submarine landslide deposits in great detail. Increased and new access to drilling coring in situ measurements and monitoring devices allows for ground truth of geophysical data and provides access to samples for geotechnical laboratory experiments and information on in situ strength and effective stress conditions of underwater slopes susceptible to fail. Great advances in numerical simulation techniques of submarine landslide kinematics and tsunami propagation particularly since the 2004 Sumatra tsunami have also led to increased understanding and predictability of submarine landslide consequences. This volume consists of the latest scientific research by international experts in geological, geophysical, engineering and environmental aspects of submarine mass failure, focused on understanding the full spectrum of challenges presented by submarine mass movements and their consequences.

Terrigenous Mass Movements Biswajeet Pradhan, Manfred Buchroithner, 2012-04-05

Terrestrial mass movements i.e. cliff collapses, soil creeps, mudflows, landslides etc. are severe forms of natural disasters mostly occurring in mountainous terrain which is subjected to specific geological, geomorphological and climatological conditions as well as to human activities. It is a challenging task to accurately define the position, type and activity of mass movements for the purpose of creating inventory records and potential vulnerability maps. Remote sensing techniques in combination with Geographic Information System tools allow state of the art investigation of the degree of potential mass movements and modeling surface processes for hazard and risk mapping. Similarly, through statistical prediction models, future mass movement prone areas can be identified and damages can to a certain extent be minimized Issues of scale and selection of morphological attributes for the scientific analysis of mass movements call for new developments in data modeling and spatio temporal GIS analysis The book is a product of a cooperation between the editors and several contributing authors addressing current issues and recent developments in GI technology and mass movements research Its fundamental treatment of this technology includes data modeling topography geology geomorphology remote sensing artificial neural networks binomial regression fuzzy logic spatial statistics and analysis and scientific visualization Both theoretical and practical issues are addressed

Feiken,2014-09-18 This books explores the bias that is introduced by erosion and sedimentation on the distribution of archaeological materials in Mediterranean landscapes It describes innovative and interdisciplinary work that led to the formulation of a broad range of geo archeological approaches that are applied to two Italian areas studied intensively by the Groningen Institute of Archaeology the Pontine Region in South Lazio and the Raganello Basin in North Calabria The approaches deal with geological biases affecting the study of protohistoric remains in the sedimentary part of the Pontine plain the development of a detailed landscape classification approach to predict and test site location preferences and survey biases in the uplands of both study areas and the development and evaluation of an innovative computerised landscape evolution model for a test area in the Raganello Basin uplands In addition to the presented case study this book also shows how the three geo archaeological approaches can be applied in a wider context to quantitatively understand how erosion and sedimentation bias our understanding of archaeological records Nonviolence before King Anthony C.
