

Selection and Speciation Exploration

How can changes in a population result in the formation of a new species?

Why?

Have you ever wondered how the great diversity of life on Earth has come about or how a single new species forms? Environmental pressures may cause populations to change over time or evolve. This is because an organism's ability to live to adulthood in its current environment will determine its reproductive success and ability to pass on its genes. But changes within a population can occur without creating a new species. At what point do scientists start thinking of a new name for a species?
