Cognitive Pluralism Steven Horst,2024-07-02 An argument that we understand the world through many special purpose mental models of different content domains and an exploration of the philosophical implications Philosophers have traditionally assumed that the basic units of knowledge and understanding are concepts beliefs and argumentative inferences In Cognitive Pluralism Steven Horst proposes that another sort of unit a mental model of a content domain is the fundamental unit of understanding He argues that understanding comes not in word sized concepts sentence sized beliefs or argument sized reasoning but in the form of idealized models and in domain sized chunks He argues further that this idea of cognitive pluralism the claim that we understand the world through many such models of a variety of content domains sheds light on a number of problems in philosophy Horst first presents the standard view of cognitive architecture assumed in mainstream epistemology semantics truth theory and theory of reasoning He then explains the notion of a mental model as an internal surrogate that mirrors features of its target domain and puts it in the context of ideas in psychology philosophy of science artificial intelligence and theoretical cognitive science Finally he argues that the cognitive pluralist view not only helps to explain puzzling disunities of knowledge but also raises doubts about the feasibility of attempts to unify the sciences presents a model based account of intuitive judgments and contends that cognitive pluralism favors a reliabilist epistemology and a molecularist semantics Horst suggests that cognitive pluralism allows us to view rival epistemological and semantic theories not as direct competitors but as complementary accounts each an idealized model of different dimensions of evaluation
