The Course Reflection Project Nicole Schonemann, Emily Metzgar, Andrew Libby, 2015-05-01 Service learning is entering a post initiatory phase At tertiary institutions of all types and sizes service learning programs are common and service learning requirements for graduation are growing in popularity Taken together alongside continued faculty interest in effective teaching these factors have raised the visibility and popularity of service learning Now the greater need in service learning is not to prove the need for or efficacy of service learning but to turn the focus squarely back on practice Following established best practice is not enough instructors also need to reflect on how this fits within the specific context and application of each unique course and service learning partnership While there are many excellent resources that detail best practice and showcase exemplary service learning courses faculty reflection and course revision often goes unmentioned In response to the lack of attention on the role of reflection and course revision we convened groups of faculty from a variety of disciplines to reflect deeply on their courses paying specific attention to obstacles and challenges These conversations were converted to articles for this edited collection each chapter representing the process of reflection and revision and serving as a guide to develop effective practice in varied curricular contexts This text contributes to the body of literature on service learning in a unique and practical manner Faculty teaching or interested in teaching service learning classes would benefit from this text as well as university administrators and community service directors involved in service learning at a programmatic and institutional level This book should be marketed to faculty teaching disciplinary service learning classes and service learning pedagogy classes and administrative offices involved in service learning This could be a supplementary text for graduate level pedagogy courses Higher education institutional libraries would benefit from this text as well as the national and state campus compact offices

Developing Reflective TESOL Practitioners Through Teacher Education

Andrzej Cirocki, Mark Wyatt, Xuesong (Andy) Gao, 2024-06-26 This textbook provides insights from Asian contexts into how reflective practice is nurtured on Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages TESOL and English Language Teaching ELT teacher education programmes There is increasing recognition worldwide that given the centrality of reflective practice to teachers ongoing professional development supporting teachers to become reflective practitioners should be integral to teacher education programmes Consequently tertiary level courses in areas such as TESOL and ELT tend to promote reflective practice supported by theoretical input from the burgeoning literature on reflection much of which is produced in the West Relatively under represented in the literature are global perspectives on reflective practice there are consequently relatively few accounts as to how reflective practice is embedded in teacher education programmes in different parts of the world including Asia Hence this book addresses a gap Contributing authors from fourteen countries provide insights into the ways in which teachers are helped to grow as reflective practitioners on their teacher education programmes in their unique contexts This textbook showcases how reflective teaching practices are developed supported by frameworks for critical reflection and in interaction with local educational policies These distinctive accounts aid readers in reflecting on the ways in which reflective practice is supported in their own teacher education contexts and in considering ways of enhancing the reflective dimension of their programmes This textbook showcases innovative reflective activities and can be used as a principal text or as supplemental reading on a range of TESOL and ELT teacher education courses

Community-Based Global Learning Eric Hartman, Richard C. Kiely, Jessica Friedrichs, Christopher Boettcher, 2023-07-03 International education service learning and community based global learning programs are robust with potential They can positively impact communities grow civil society networks and have transformative effects for students who become more globally aware and more engaged in global civil society at home and abroad Yet such programs are also packed with peril Clear evidence indicates that poor forms of such programming have negative impacts on vulnerable persons including medical patients and children while cementing stereotypes and reinforcing patterns of privilege and exclusion These dangers can be mitigated however through collaborative planning design and evaluation that advances mutually beneficial community partnerships critically reflective practice thoughtful facilitation and creative use of resources Drawing on research and insights from several academic disciplines and community partner perspectives along with the authors decades of applied community based development and education experience they present a model of community based global learning that clearly espouses an equitable balance between learning methodology and a community development philosophy Emphasizing the key drivers of community driven learning and service cultural humility and exchange seeking global citizenship continuous and diverse forms of critically reflective practice and ongoing attention to power and privilege this book constitutes a guide to course or program design that takes into account the unpredictable and dynamic character of domestic and international community based global learning experiences the varying characteristics of destination communities and a framework through which to integrate any discipline or collaborative project Readers will appreciate the numerous toolboxes and reflective exercises to help them think through the creation of independent programming or courses that support targeted learning and community driven development The book ultimately moves beyond course and program design to explore how to integrate these objectives and values in the wider curriculum and throughout formal and informal community based learning partnerships

A Petroleum Geologist's Guide to Seismic Reflection William Ashcroft, 2011-03-08. This book is written for advanced earth science students geologists petroleum engineers and others who want to get quickly up to speed on the interpretation of reflection seismic data. It is a development of material given to students on the MSc course in Petroleum Geology at Aberdeen University and takes the form of a course manual rather than a systematic textbook. It can be used as a self contained course for individual study or as the basis for a class programme. The book clarifies those aspects of the subject that students tend to find difficult and provides insights through practical tutorials which aim to reinforce and deepen understanding of key topics and provide the reader with a measure of feedback on progress. Some tutorials may only involve drawing simple diagrams but many are computer aided PC based with graphics output to give insight into key steps in seismic data processing or into the seismic response of some common geological scenarios. Part I of the book covers basic ideas and it ends with two tutorials in 2 D structural interpretation. Part II concentrates on the current seismic reflection contribution to reservoir studies based on 3 D data.
