

DNP Program Admission Essay Example Essay

I humbly submit my application for admission in your reputable institution. I am interested in the Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) program because I am particularly passionate about breast milk misadministration in pediatric care. Moreover, my interest in this area is driven by my desire to improve electronic solution breast milk management system that will eradicate misadministration of breast milk. If accepted, I stand to gain impeccable knowledge in this area due to the long-standing reputation of the institute in churning out DNPs who have gone to transform the nursing practice in various fronts. By following the footsteps of my predecessors, I intend to utilize my DNP in eradicating breast milk misadministration through the establishment of electronic solution breast milk management systems for various hospitals and healthcare facilities. In the end, the knowledge gained will be imperative towards edging me closer to my desire to contribute to pediatric health improvement.

Eglash, Simon, and The Academy of Breastfeeding Medicine (2017) echo my passion and interest in the area of breastfeeding misadministration. The authors point out the problem of breast milk handling by mothers who have to express their breast milk for various reasons associated with life's pressures. Consequently, breast milk handling and storage knowledge are not that common and more awareness ought to be developed not merely for breastfeeding mothers but also among medical practitioners responsible for storage and handling of breast milk. To this extent, I am confident that studying this DNP will edge me closer to my goal of being an advocate for proper breast milk handling and storage for averting misadministration.

Evidence-based practice research shows that fitting electronic systems that utilize barcodes for the storage of breast milk have far-reaching benefits as far as the correct marking of stored breast milk is concerned. As such, an electronic system that provides a database of records regarding breast milk source and recipient presents advantages of proper tracking in case of eventualities such as misadministration. Evidently, electronic systems assist practitioners to improve performance in ensuring that a mix-up is averted (Gabrielski & Lessen, 2011). Further, an electronic system can help organize the handling and storage processes from procurement, thawing, fortification, labeling, and administration. Hence, averting instances of misadministration. That is specifically essential for the proper administration of breast milk, for instance, to pre-term infants who depend on breast milk for survival (Steele, 2018). I am optimistic that this DNP program will equip me with the necessary skills and expertise to establish an electronic system that meets these needs.

Finally, I would like to express my sincere appreciation for the work that the institute has been involved in regarding pediatric healthcare, as it is renowned for its dedication to reducing infant mortality in line with WHO goals. I trust that this DNP will also allow me access to knowledge on how to create awareness among mothers who express milk on proper storage and retrieval methods that enhances and preserves the quality of the breast milk that they express. Further, precaution on infections and diseases that are transmitted through donor breast milk are also some of the issues that I find pertinent in the area of breast milk management (Eglash, et al., 2017). I cannot reiterate how important pediatric health is to me as a philosophy and as a guardian of future generations. I believe that our children are the future of humanity and we as adults owe them the best healthcare so that they can attain their potential later in life. I am optimistic that enrolling in the DNP program
