Mizoguchi, 1997

The theme of this book is Knowledge and Media in Learning Systems and papers that explore the emerging roles of intelligent multimedia and distributed technologies as well as computer supported collaboration within that theme are included. The spread of topics is very wide encompassing both well established areas such as student modelling as well as more novel topics such as distributed intelligent tutoring on the World Wide Web. Far from undermining the need to understand how learning and teaching interact, the newer media continue to emphasise the interdependence of these two processes. Collaboration and tools for collaboration are the major topics of interest. Understanding how human learners collaborate, how peer tutoring works and how the computer can play a useful role as either a more able or even a less able learning partner are all explored here.

Computational Models of Mixed-Initiative Interaction Susan Haller, Susan McRoy, Alfred Kobsa, 2013-11-11. Computational Models of Mixed Initiative Interaction brings together research that spans several disciplines related to artificial intelligence including natural language processing, information retrieval, machine learning, planning and computer aided instruction to account for the role that mixed initiative plays in the design of intelligent systems. The ten contributions address the single issue of how control of an interaction should be managed when abilities needed to solve a problem are distributed among collaborating agents. Managing control of an interaction among humans and computers to gather and assemble knowledge and expertise is a major challenge that must be met to develop machines that effectively collaborate with humans. This is the first collection to specifically address this issue.
