

Civil Rights

Lesson 1

Taking on Segregation

Key Terms and People

Segregation segregation: Action of separating people who had different backgrounds—gender, religion, etc.

Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka Brown v. Board of Education: Case law for schools segregation, which ended school segregation.

Booker T. Washington Booker T. Washington: First African American leader.

James Farmer James Farmer: One of the civil rights movement.

Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee SNCC: Civil rights organization formed by students in the 1960s, made up of young people and working people.

Before You Read

In the first lesson you will learn about environmental activists. In this lesson you will read how African Americans challenged discrimination, protest of segregation and participation.

As You Read

Provide details for examples of people who fought against segregation.

What is the main idea of the text?
How did African Americans fight against segregation?

By 1910 there were more than 100,000 African American people in the United States. They were mostly poor and lived in the South. They were not allowed to go to school with white people. They were not allowed to work in the same jobs as white people.

During the 1950s, the American Civil Rights Movement began. It was a movement to fight against segregation and discrimination. It was led by people like Martin Luther King Jr.

In 1954, the Supreme Court decided in Brown v. Board of Education that segregation was unconstitutional.

This decision led to a change in the way that schools were run. It was a victory for African Americans. It was a step towards equality.

However, during the 1960s, there were still many problems. There were still many people who were not allowed to go to school with white people. There were still many people who were not allowed to work in the same jobs as white people. There were still many people who were not allowed to live in the same neighborhoods as white people.

There were still many people who were not allowed to vote. There were still many people who were not allowed to serve on juries.
