Nursing documentation

Nursing documentation is a very important thing because it is the nursing care of a healthcare professional services are available for 24 hours on an ongoing basis during patient treatment . Thus , nursing care plan an important role in maintaining and improving the quality of care in hospitals and health centers.

Tungpalan (1983) says that " The document is a record that can be proved or be used as evidence in legal matters " . While documentation is a work record or a record of events and objects and activities providing services (services) that is considered valuable and important . Documentation of care in nursing services is part of the activities to be done by a nurse after giving care to patients . Documentation is a comprehensive information includes the patient's health status , patient needs , nursing care activities as well as the patient's response to care it receives . Thus nursing documentation has a large portion of the clinical records of patients who informs certain factors or circumstances that occur during the care exercised. Besides, it can also record as a vehicle for communication and coordination between professions (Interdisciplinary) which can be used to uncover the actual facts to be accounted for .

Nursing documentation care is an integral part of nursing care are carried out according to the standard . Thus understanding and skill in applying the standard of good is something that is absolutely necessary for every nursing personnel to be able to make the nursing documentation is good and right

Patient record is a legal document , from the healthy status of the patient's illness at the time of the past , present , in written form , which describes the nursing care given . Generally information of patient records that contain identifying problems , nursing and medical diagnostics , patient's response to care given caring and response to treatment , and also contains some more advanced plans for intervention . The existence of good documentation and report form records will greatly assist communication among nurses / midwives and other disciplines in the treatment plan .
