

The Nursing Process

Running head: NURSING PROCESS Nursing Process University of Phoenix Nursing Process In the field of nursing, the nursing process is a vital tool used to promote appropriate and effective nursing care to patients. The actual nursing process consists of five components, which are intermingled, and constantly adjusting or changing according to the patients needs. The Registered Nurse (RN), regardless of the area of nursing being practiced, utilizes the nursing process to effectively deliver patient-focused care (American Nurses Association, 2006) (Kuckyt, 2008).

The assessment phase includes the gathering of facts. The information obtained includes psychological, physiological, and sociocultural data, as well as economic and life-style factors, which can all effect the patients' recovery (American Nurses Association, 2006) (Kuckyt, 2008) (Quan, 2007). During this fact-finding phase, the RN obtains information from what he or she observes directly via a physical assessment as well as information obtained from other sources such as the patient, patient family, and laboratory or test results.

This information is vital and essential before continuing through the remaining four phases of the Nursing Process and establishing an effective plan of care. For example, while obtaining a medical history from a Ketoacidosis patient, the nurse discovers the patient has had no formal teaching regarding the disease and a lack of financial resources. During the diagnosis phase, the RN is able to elaborate beyond the obvious clinical diagnosis determined by the physician.

The RN uses the data obtained during the assessment phase as well as his or her critical thinking skills, to determine additional problems, which can determine the patients' response to treatment (Ackley, 2008). The actual nursing diagnoses are included in a system named "The North American Nursing Diagnosis Association" or NANDA. The RN chooses an approved diagnosis from the NANDA list related to his or her patient. For example, using the previously mentioned patient, the nurse establishes a NANDA approved diagnosis of "Deficient Knowledge" and include a defining characteristic of verbalization of the problem with a related actor of unfamiliarity with information resources. NANDA consists of accepted diagnosis employed by nurses and includes suggested nursing outcome classification (NOC) as well as suggested nursing intervention classifications (NIC) (Ackley, 2008). The planning phase of the nursing process includes the formulating and establishing measurable outcome or goal statements and determines appropriate nursing interventions utilizing both NOC's and NIC's (Ackley, 2008) (Blas, 2006).

For the Ketoacidosis patient, appropriate NOC's include knowledge of diet in four days, knowledge of disease process in seven, as well as medication knowledge in 5 days and health resources knowledge in seven days. A time limit for accomplishing each NOC must a

Telenurse R. A. Mortensen, 1997 This book is dedicated to the promotion of the International Classification Nursing practice ICNP in Europe and to demonstrate how comparative tele matic based nursing data can be used in nursing modules of the electronic patient records Using ICNP as structured data entry will counter the lack of uniform comparative descriptive data on nursing care and enhance the clinical nursing research potential of electronic patient records It is the aim of TELENURSE not only to advance nursing documentation from the stage of paper and pen to the stage of modern telematic but also to advance electronic nursing documentation from isolated systems to integrated nursing modules of the electronic patient records

Integrations spanning from data integration to integration of nursing modules with an overall architecture of electronic patient records require on the one hand different competencies and skills On the other hand integration can only be accomplished between equal partners The marriage of nursing knowledge to telematic knowledge within TELENURSE is believed to result in new generations of comprehensive and integrated telematic applications which will be of benefit to the whole health care sector This book will update you on the insights with respect to the electronic applicability of the ICNP in a European Health Environment Mosby's Textbook for Long-Term Care Nursing Assistants - E-Book Clare
