New Ways to Engage Parents Patricia Edwards, 2016 Just as populations change ideas about how to encourage and work with parents also need to evolve This practical resource by bestselling author Patricia Edwards provides school leaders and classroom teachers with new and creative ways in which to welcome encourage and involve parents Enacting these types of practices requires a special kind of commitment from teachers and school leaders which often coincides with a particular kind of mindset about families and one's responsibility to engage them Educators often develop this mindset as they deepen their understanding of families literacy language culture race class and themselves Edwards pulls these understandings together and presents them in a straightforward concise and easy to use guide that is perfect for professional learning communities and teacher preparation courses New Ways to Engage Parents is essential reading for all educators who care deeply about engaging a wide range of parents in today's schools It is my hope that this book inspires teachers to seek ways to make schools more equitable and caring spaces for all children From the Foreword by Catherine Compton Lilly University of Wisconsin Madison Long a leader in the field Professor Patricia Edwards reinforces the fact that education is a shared responsibility of home school and community She presents scores of practical ideas and resources to enable educators to involve all parents in their children's education Joyce L Epstein Johns Hopkins University Finally a book that brings partnering with parents into the 21st century This is a book teachers will want to keep at their fingertips Jeanne R Paratore Boston University

2011 Normative Data Northwest Evaluation Association, 2017 Having the right data is a key component of individualizing instruction for each child The Northwest Evaluation Association NWEA has the ability to measure a student's achievement and academic growth independent of grade across time From the insight provided with Measures of Academic Progress MAP and its reports educators can compare class or grade level performance to students from a wide variety of schools across the country Status norms provide a starting point for educators to review data and help them gain an understanding of each child's current academic level where they need focused instruction and the extent of their progress The 2011 NWEA RIT Scale Norms Study provides growth and status norms for all five RIT scales Reading Language Usage Mathematics General Science and Science Concepts and Processes NWEA FAQ Northwest Evaluation Association, 2015 Northwest Evaluation Association NWEA conducts norming studies every several years to provide the best and most up to date information we can about student achievement and growth to better support educational decision making It is an important part of our commitment to our partners The most recent NWEA norms were released in July 2015 Just as we expect student performance to change with time norms of student performance will change correspondingly For 2015 several factors may have influenced how the US school age population performed on Measures of Academic Progress MAP assessments of language usage mathematics and reading over the 2011 12 2012 13 and 2013 14 school years Prominent among these possible factors are the introduction of Common Core instruction and Common Core versions of MAP But as with all empirical studies changes in scope and data necessitated changes in statistical design and analyses The methodological improvements introduced in the 2015 norms have resulted in a set of norms that are more representative of the US school age population than previous NWEA norms. Methodological changes involved differences in the way post stratification weights were developed and the way growth was modeled. Details of these changes are addressed more thoroughly in the 2015 Norms Study. As a result of the improved methodology, partners can expect some differences from previous norms as explained below.

The Road to Improving Informational Text Comprehension in the Upper Elementary Grades Christine L. Ahrens, 2017. This study addresses how the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) have been implemented in the Sheboygan Area School District using the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework. With the CCSS, there is an increase of 50% informational text in the elementary grades (CCSSO 2010). The research questions are: How does teaching the Common Core State Standards in English Language Arts and Literacy affect comprehension of overall reading and informational text using the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework compared to traditional teaching methods as assessed by Measure of Academic Progress tests in the upper elementary grades? As well as: How well do teachers know the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework? Are teachers using the framework? What are some reasons why teachers would not use CCRF? This research is a quasi-experimental design of quantitatively examining Measure of Academic Progress (MAP) test results specific to the informational text strand. Based on 2011 NWEA Measure of Academic Progress Normative Data for reading, 10,604 scores were analyzed. The second part of the research study was based on an archived teacher survey (n=89) about teachers' beliefs on the effectiveness and usage of the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework. The findings show that all student groups increased in overall reading as well as the strand of informational text. A t-test showed all three grade levels were significantly different from the 2011 NWEA MAP Normative Overall Reading data for the fall 2012 to spring 2013 school year. The ANOVA tests show no statistically significant differences between the experimental groups receiving the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework and those receiving traditional reading instruction. The researcher believes that teacher experience had a larger impact on growth than the Curriculum Companion Reading Framework. This is based on the fact that the median and mode for teachers' years of experience was 25 years. Teacher confidence in teaching using this new framework has declined significantly compared to prior reading instruction.
