PAPER REVIEW : Exploring Factors that Influence Organization Citizenship Behavior In the Advertising Industry

Advertising is presenting intriguing content or messages to the public through mass media to promote a company's products or services. Advertising is usually used by companies to get people's attention. Advertisements are also made as attractive and creative as possible, so that they have the opportunity to get public attention. Many businesses are turning to digital marketing to sell their products as technology advances. Before the existence of sophisticated technology like today, many companies marketed their products manually such as by distributing flyers to motorists who passed in front of the company. We can see whether or not a company is running smoothly from its human resources who work for the company which can affect a company externally and internally. As for the factors that affect a company in its advertising, the first is Organizational Citizenship Behavior also has an important role for employees because if employees already have Organizational Citizenship Behavior, then the employee will work as much as possible for the company. Organizational citizenship behavior is a term that's used to describe all the positive and constructive employee actions and behaviors that aren't part of their formal job description. It's anything that employees do, out of their own free will, that supports their colleagues and benefits the organization as a whole. Next, besides behavior, communication is also another important factor. Without communication, work or a company will not run smoothly. Communication makes it easier for things to be done and to reach an agreement later for the common good. Communication is a tool to build a good organization. If there is an error in the interpretation of communication, it will affect the goals of the organization. Organizational support in order to know the extent of employee capabilities and appreciate the abilities of employees. Work motivation is useful for providing support to employees to work optimally with one common goal, namely the welfare of employees and the wealth of a company. This work motivation is certainly very important to make employees feel comfortable with their work and the work environment. Related between the contents of this paper and business ethics and law is in advertising there are ethics and laws which cannot be arbitrary. Ethics in making advertisements is the existence of support, motivation and communication so that the goals will run smoothly. The law in making advertisements is to make advertisements attract the attention of the public without bringing down or harming other companies, being creative but not copying other companies' advertisements.
