

Integration of Nursing Theories in Practice

Smriti Arora*

College of Nursing, Jamia Hamdard, New Delhi, India

Abstract

Nursing theory is a well thought-out and systematic expression of a set of recommendations related to questions in the discipline of nursing. A nursing theory is a set of ideas, definitions, relationships, and expectations or suggestions derived from nursing models or from other disciplines and project a purposive, methodical outlook of phenomena by designing specific inter-relationships among notions for the purposes of describing, explaining, forecasting, and /or recommending. The purpose of the study is to help nurses to describe, explain and predict daily experiences and also serve to guide valuation, involvement and assessment of nursing care. Provide a justification for assembling trustworthy and valid data about the health prominence of clients, which are necessary for effective decision making and execution. Enrich self-sufficiency of nursing by defining its own independent functions.

INTRODUCTION

Nursing has made phenomenal attainment in the past era that has lead to the credit of nursing as an educational discipline and a profession. A move towards theory-based practice has made modern nursing more expressive and noteworthy by shifting nursing's emphasis from vocation to an organised profession. The necessity for knowledge-base to guide proficient nursing practice had been recognized in the first half of the twentieth century and many hypothetical works have been subsidised by nurses constantly from the time when, first with the goal of making nursing a recognised profession and later with the objective of providing care to patients as experts^[1].

Theories are an established of interconnected thoughts that give a methodical outlook of a phenomenon (an observable fact or event) that is illustrative and prognostic in nature. Theories are collected of conceptions, definitions, models, suggestions and are based on expectations. They are derived through two principal methods; reasonable thinking and inductive reasoning^[1].
