Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

A Handbook of Reflective and Experiential Learning Jennifer A. Moon, 2013-04-15 This handbook acts as an essential guide to understanding and using reflective and experiential learning whether it be for personal or professional development or as a tool for learning. It takes a fresh look at experiential and reflective learning locating them within an overall theoretical framework for learning and exploring the relationships between different approaches. As well as the theory the book provides practical ideas for applying the models of learning with tools, activities and photocopiable resources which can be incorporated directly into classroom practice. This book is essential reading to guide any teacher, lecturer or trainer wanting to improve teaching and learning. Reflective Writing in Counselling and Psychotherapy Jeannie Wright, Gillie Bolton, 2012-04-05 Have you been asked to keep a personal development portfolio or reflective journal? Are you struggling to know where to start, how to write or what to include? If the answer is yes, Reflective Writing in Counselling and Psychotherapy will provide you with a straightforward route in telling you all you need to know about writing reflectively for your own personal and professional development. Offering staged exercises, case studies, examples and ideas for self-directed learning, this book will lead the reader along an exciting journey of written self-awareness. Writing and Health Care Janelle Adsit, 2025-05-29 How can arts-based approaches benefit patients and professionals within the health care system? Can the skills creative writers use to craft their work be applied more broadly to enhance the wellbeing of those in need of medical care? This book offers a practical introduction to how these ideas can be employed within health care settings as treatments to foster more empathetic and humane interactions between patients and practitioners and to help understand the personal narratives of others. Combining aesthetic theory with practice, Writing and Health Care reflects on the role of creative expression in bettering the life and wellbeing of oneself and others. Touching on areas as diverse as health humanities, narrative medicine, creative therapies and transformative language arts, it introduces a range of genres including graphic medicine, illness narratives, sick lit and more. Foregrounding health justice and thinking with intersectional communities at the forefront, this book enables readers to write in ways that resist limited thinking, contribute to the transformation of health systems and processes and generate works that promote forms of expression with therapeutic effects for patients and practitioners alike. Best Practices and Programmatic Approaches for Mentoring Educational Leaders Wilkerson, Amanda, Samuels, Shalander, 2023-02-17 In today's educational world, supporting graduate students from all backgrounds and ensuring they receive the best education possible is vital. Reflective Teaching and Learning in the Health Professions David Kember, 2008-04-15 This book deals with the nature of professional education and the need to produce professionals who are capable of reflection upon practice. It derives comprehensive guidelines for developing curricula and teaching methods that encourage reflective thinking. It is heavily research based and the multiprofessional approach is unique to this subject matter. It will appeal to educators in all health science disciplines. The book includes an introduction to the concepts of reflection and reflective thinking and describes action research methodology used to carry out this study. Findings are presented in the form of case studies and the conclusions drawn are considered in the context of practical implementation.

Tell Me a Story Anthony Tate Fulton, Christopher B. Field, Michael MacBride, 2017-09-25 Stories have great power. This book attempts to harness that power to help students grow and develop as writers. It argues that stories and narratives can be utilized in the composition classroom specifically first year composition FYC to break down barriers. Throughout a given semester stories and narratives can help students in composition courses to overcome academic personal and creative barriers establishing a space for developing as writers and thinkers. Providing theoretical approaches practical methods and implications for using stories in FYC this book explores the versatility of stories as teaching tools.

Teaching Reflective Learning in Higher Education Mary Elizabeth Ryan, 2014-11-05 This book is about understanding the nature and application of reflection in higher education. It provides a theoretical model to guide the implementation of reflective learning and reflective practice across multiple disciplines and international contexts in higher education. The book presents research into the ways in which reflection is both considered and implemented in different ways across different professional disciplines while maintaining a common purpose to transform and improve learning and or practice. The Readers will find this book is innovative and new in three key ways. Firstly in its holistic theorisation of reflection within the pedagogic field of higher education. Secondly in conceptualising reflection in different modes to achieve specific purposes in different disciplines and finally in providing conceptual guidance for embedding reflective learning and reflective practice in a systematic way across whole programmes faculties or institutions in higher education. The book considers important contextual factors that influence the teaching of forms and methods of reflection. It provides a functional analysis of multiple modes of reflection including written oral visual auditory and embodied forms. Empirical chapters analyse the application of these modes across disciplines and at different stages of a programme. The theoretical model accounts for students stage of development in the disciplinary field along with progressive and cyclical levels of higher order thinking and learning and professional practice that are expected within different disciplines and professional fields.
