Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

Music's Fourth Wall and the Rise of Reflective Listening Mark Evan Bonds,2025-06-27 We've all heard some version of the line I enjoy classical music but don't know anything about it Why but Why and when did listeners begin to accept the idea that knowledge was needed to enjoy this particular repertory Music's Fourth Wall and the Rise of Reflective Listening traces fundamental changes in the way listeners perceived instrumental music in European concert halls over the course of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries Like the theater the concert hall has its own fourth wall an imagined barrier that allows audiences to forget that what they are experiencing is a carefully crafted artifice which in turn allows them to lose themselves in the music and resonate with it in a way that is immediate and direct But when composers like Joseph Haydn began to violate music's fourth wall most spectacularly in the finale of the Joke String Quartet 1782 with its repeated false endings lay listeners were compelled to listen reflectively They could not lose themselves in what they were hearing when it kept reminding them that they were listening to a work of music Author Mark Evan Bonds uses the concepts of resonant and reflective listening as coordinates for tracing this important change in the history of concert hall listening By 1850 reflective listening once limited largely to professional musicians and connoisseurs had become the aspirational norm for lay listeners Contemporary developments in the philosophy of art accelerated the growing status of instrumental music by promoting a mode of perception that went beyond the merely sensory to incorporate the intellectual as well Beethoven famously thought of himself as a tone poet someone who not only moved listeners but also challenged them to think and reflect Lay audiences thus gradually accepted the idea of listening as a skill that could be learned and cultivated Bonds shows how music appreciation texts composer biographies program notes and pre-concert lectures all new during this period helped reinforce a growing distinction between classical and popular repertories For better or worse the ideal of reflective listening has prevailed ever since Nineteenth-Century Czech Musical Culture Anja Bunzel, Christopher Campo-Bowen, 2024-02-23 This volume focuses on the circumstances of women's music making in the vibrant and diverse environment of the Czech lands during the nineteenth century. It sheds light on little-known women musicians while also considering more well-known works and composers from new woman-centric perspectives. It shows how the unique environment of Habsburg Central Europe, especially Bohemia and Lower Austria, intersects with gender to reveal hitherto unexplored networks that challenge the methodological nationalism of music studies as well as the discipline's continued emphasis on singular canonical figures. The main areas of enquiry address aspects of performance and identity both within the Czech lands and abroad: women's impact on social life with a view to different private, semiprivate and public contexts and networks; and compositional aesthetics in musical works by and about women analysed through the lens of piano works, song, choir music and opera, always with the reception of these works in mind.

Artistic Research in Music: Discipline and Resistance Jonathan Impett, 2017-12-04 The Orpheus Institute celebrates 20 years of artistic research in music. Artistic research has come of age and with it the Orpheus Institute. Founded twenty years ago, the Institute's purpose from the start has been to pursue research through the practice of musicians. The Orpheus Institute is of the same generation as the field it was established to explore. Like many young adults, artistic research and its structures are still constructing their identity within a wider world. How have they developed? How will they mature? How can they negotiate relationships with institutions, disciplines and bodies of theory and yet retain the essence of their work, the critical perspective of the artist? In the last two decades there have been major changes in the dynamics and structures of culture, its institutions and constituencies. How can artistic research maintain a productive dialectic between its potential status as a discipline and its core as radical practice? These and related questions are the threads woven through this collection of essays and assessments by present and past members of the Orpheus community: researchers, scholars, administrators, advisors. Together and separately they weave a tapestry of past accomplishments, current research and future perspectives. They celebrate the twentieth anniversary of Orpheus not with congratulations but with challenges and questions: a job for research, a job for the Institute, a job for the future. The wide range of contributors to this volume includes practitioner-researchers, theorists and academic leaders from institutions at the forefront of artistic research in music: Contributors: Tom Beghin, Orpheus Institute Ghent; Paulo de Assis, Orpheus Institute Ghent; Leonella Grasso, Caprioli Conservatorio di Vicenza; Jonathan Impett, Orpheus Institute Ghent; Esa Kirkkopelto, University of the Arts Helsinki; Kari Kurkela, University of the Arts Helsinki; Susan Melrose, Middlesex University London; Stefan Stersj, Orpheus Institute Ghent; Gertrud Sandqvist, Malmö Art Academy; Huib Schippers, Vanessa Tomlinson, Paul Draper, Queensland Conservatorium Research Centre Griffith University; Luk Vaes, Orpheus Institute Ghent; Janneke Wesseling, Kitty Zijlmans, Leiden University.
