1. Using colored pencils or pen, list under the symbol (in this order!) the Atomic Radius, First Ionization Energy, and Electronegativity.
2. Use a different color for each property. Example: Write all of the Atomic radius values in red, all of the First ionization energies in green, and all of the Electronegativities in blue. Of course, you can pick any colors that are available, as long as you are consistent.
3. Observe the trends in each property as you go down the Alkali metal group, and as you go across Period 3.
4. Write out each of the statements written on the opposite side, completing each statement with the observed trend (increase or decrease)

Computability Theory and Its Applications Peter Cholak, 2000 This collection of articles presents a snapshot of the status of computability theory at the end of the millennium and a list of fruitful directions for future research. The papers represent the works of experts in the field who were invited speakers at the AMS IMS SIAM 1999 Summer Conference on Computability Theory and Applications which focused on open problems in computability theory and on some related areas in which the ideas, methods, and/or results of computability theory play a role. Some presentations are narrowly focused; others cover a wider area. Topics included from pure computability theory are the computably enumerable degrees, M. Lerman, the computably enumerable sets, P. Cholak, R. Soare, definability issues in the  $\Sigma_1^1$  and Turing degrees, A. Nies, R. Shore, and other degree structures, M. Arslanov, S. Badaev, and S. Goncharov, P. Odifreddi, A. Sorbi. Maps of physical spaces locate us in the world and help us navigate unfamiliar routes. Maps of topical spaces help us visualize the extent and structure of our collective knowledge; they reveal bursts of activity, pathways of ideas, and borders that beg to be crossed. This book from the author of Atlas of Science describes the power of topical maps, providing readers with principles for visualizing knowledge and offering, as examples, forty large scale and more than 100 small scale full color maps. Today, data literacy is becoming as important as language literacy. Well designed visualizations can rescue us from a sea of data, helping us to make sense of information, connect ideas, and make better decisions in real time. In Atlas of Knowledge, leading visualization expert Katy Borner makes the case for a systems science approach to science and technology studies and explains different types and levels of analysis. Drawing on fifteen years of teaching and tool development, she introduces a theoretical framework meant to guide readers through user and task analysis, data preparation, analysis, and visualization, visualization deployment, and the interpretation of science maps. To exemplify the framework, the Atlas features striking and enlightening new maps from the popular Places Spaces Mapping Science exhibit that range from Key Events in the Development of the Video Tape Recorder to Mobile Landscapes, Location Data from Cell Phones for Urban Analysis, to Literary Empires Mapping Temporal and Spatial Settings of Victorian Poetry, to Seeing Standards: A Visualization of the Metadata Universe.
