Anyone Can Cook, Even the Rowers

TITLE

INTRO

They tell me my name is French for "oarsman," that I have been rowing my way uphill since I was born. They told me to stay in my lane, that I had no idea what I was doing with food. They didn't believe me about my sense of taste or smell, that I knew that one day I would be a chef until it happened.

It was a crisp fall day. Leaves scattered across the road, cushioning the footsteps of people bringing fresh baguettes home for dinner or breakfast. It is hard not to fall in love with a city like this, the way every building, street, and light can hold the potential of romance.

I saw him from the street. A garbage boy, clumsy and awkward with untied shoes and bright red hair. He was a walking disaster, unobservant of the world or people around him, barely able to hold a knife or spice a dish. You either thought him a fool, or you pitied him for not being the things he should have been. And yet, by the end of the day, he would be my closest friend who would help me achieve my dreams.

My friend and I could not speak to each other, but we had our own way of communicating, connected only by the foods we made, the relationship we learned to build in the kitchen. Most people would credit my success to impressing a food critic, making a country dish of sliced courgettes and aubergines stewed to perfection, but that is only half truth. I had the help of my patient friends, inherent sense of smell, and plenty of mistakes along the way. They call me a rower, and so I continue to row.

Motivating Writers in Class Bruce Saddler, 2023-04-14 Writing is a very complex process that is difficult to teach learn and research Although many students struggle with writing composing often presents major challenges for students with disabilities One area of written expression that presents particular difficulties for students with disabilities is motivation Motivation is a key aspect of written expression that helps all writers complete difficult composing tasks However students with disabilities may have more negative motivational patterns and may also be less positive about writing and their ability as writers than their normally achieving peers Logically this means that effective writing intervention efforts must not only address how to write but must also articulate methods to increase students' motivation to write This book written for teachers scholars and researchers focuses on the essential issue of helping students learn how to want to write Each contributing author presents an important theoretical or pedagogical element of writing motivation for example The historical beginnings of research in this area Conceptual and methodological advances in the field of motivation to write Developmental trajectories of writing motivation in typical and atypical populations The effect of playful writing tasks on the development of writing ability as well as on motivation to write The impact of writing prompts on motivation How reading motivation relates and supports writing motivation This book was originally published as a special issue of Reading and Writing Quarterly
