CAUTION

PLEASE READ CAREFULLY
BEFORE LEAVING YOUR MARK

- 1 The most powerful "free" tip for those about to make a presentation is to use the "rule of three." This technique is based on the fact that people can remember only three items at a time. (Remember to be sure your subject fits the "Rule of Three" before you use it.) For example, if you are asked to present on the importance of the Internet, you could list the Internet as the most important tool for the small business owner, the most important tool for the small business manager, and the most important tool for the small business employee.
- 2 One of the most important elements of a presentation is the introduction. It is the first impression you make on your audience and can be the most important factor in determining whether they will listen to you or not.
- 3 If you are asked to present on a topic that is not your own, it is important to do your research. This will help you to understand the topic and to be able to answer questions that may be asked of you.
- 4 One of the most important elements of a presentation is the conclusion. It is the last impression you make on your audience and can be the most important factor in determining whether they will remember what you said or not.
