Requiring no prior training Modern Statistics for the Social and Behavioral Sciences provides a two semester graduate level introduction to basic statistical techniques that takes into account recent advances and insights that are typically ignored in an introductory course Hundreds of journal articles make it clear that basic techniques routinely taught and used can perform poorly when dealing with skewed distributions outliers heteroscedasticity unequal variances and curvature Methods for dealing with these concerns have been derived and can provide a deeper more accurate and more nuanced understanding of data A conceptual basis is provided for understanding when and why standard methods can have poor power and yield misleading measures of effect size Modern techniques for dealing with known concerns are described and illustrated Features Presents an in depth description of both classic and modern methods Explains and illustrates why recent advances can provide more power and a deeper understanding of data Provides numerous illustrations using the software R Includes an R package with over 1300 functions

Includes a solution manual giving detailed answers to all of the exercises This second edition describes many recent advances relevant to basic techniques For example a vast array of new and improved methods is now available for dealing with regression including substantially improved ANCOVA techniques The coverage of multiple comparison procedures has been expanded and new ANOVA techniques are described Rand Wilcox is a professor of psychology at the University of Southern California He is the author of 13 other statistics books and the creator of the R package WRS He currently serves as an associate editor for five statistics journals He is a fellow of the Association for Psychological Science and an elected member of the International Statistical Institute

Discriminating Data Wendy Hui Kyong Chun, 2021-11-02 How big data and machine learning encode discrimination and create agitated clusters of comforting rage In Discriminating Data Wendy Hui Kyong Chun reveals how polarization is a goal not an error within big data and machine learning These methods she argues encode segregation eugenics and identity politics through their default assumptions and conditions Correlation which grounds big data's predictive potential stems from twentieth century eugenic attempts to breed a better future Recommender systems foster angry clusters of sameness through homophily Users are trained to become authentically predictable via a politics and technology of recognition Machine learning and data analytics thus seek to disrupt the future by making disruption impossible Chun who has a background in systems design engineering as well as media studies and cultural theory explains that although machine learning algorithms may not officially include race as a category they embed whiteness as a default Facial recognition technology for example relies on the faces of Hollywood celebrities and university undergraduates groups not famous for their diversity Homophily emerged as a concept to describe white U S resident attitudes to living in biracial yet segregated public housing Predictive policing technology deploys models trained on studies of predominantly underserved neighborhoods Trained on selected and often discriminatory or dirty data these algorithms are only validated if they mirror this data How can we release ourselves from the vice like grip of discriminatory data Chun calls for alternative algorithms defaults and interdisciplinary coalitions in order to desegregate networks and foster a more democratic big data
