CRITICAL THINKING QUESTIONS

- Explore the Balancing Chemical Equations simulation. Discuss with your group what you find.
  - What are the different ways that the simulation indicates when an equation is balanced?

The molecules will show the same # of atoms on each side.

- For each balanced reaction, indicate the total number of molecules in the table below.

Reaction	Reactant Side (Left)	Product Side (Right)
Make Ammonia	4	2
Separate Water	2	3
Combust Methane	3	3
Total Number of Molecules	9	8

- Is the number of total molecules on the left side of a balanced equation always equal to the number of total molecules on the right side of the equation? Explain your answer.

No, only the combust methane has the same number of molecules on each side.

- For each balanced reaction, indicate the total number of atoms in the table below.

Make Ammonia	8	8
Separate Water	6	6
Combust Methane	9	9
Total Number of Atoms	23	23

- Is the number of total atoms on the left side of a balanced equation always equal to the number of total atoms on the right side of the equation?

Yes

Ottenbreit-Leftwich,Aman Yadav,2022-07-01 Computer science is increasingly becoming an essential 21st century skill As school systems around the world recognize the importance of computer science demand for teachers who have the knowledge and skills to deliver computer science instruction is rapidly growing Yet a number of recent studies indicate that teachers report low confidence and limited understanding of computer science frequently confusing basic computer literacy skills with computer science This is true for both teachers at the K 8 level as well as secondary education teachers who frequently transition to computer science from other content areas such as mathematics As computer science is not yet included in most teacher preparation programs professional development is a critical step in efforts to prepare in service teachers to deliver high quality computer science instruction To date however research on best practices in computer science professional development has been severely lacking in the literature making it difficult for researchers and practitioners alike to examine effective in service preparation models This book provide examples of professional development approaches that help teachers integrate aspects of computing in existing curricula at the K 8 level or deliver stand alone computer science courses at the secondary school level Further this book identifies computational competencies for teachers promising pedagogical strategies that advance teacher learning as well as alternative pathways for ongoing learning including microcredentials The primary audience of the book is graduate students and faculty in educational technology educational or cognitive psychology learning theory curriculum and instruction computer science instructional systems and learning sciences Additionally the book will serve as a valuable addition to education practitioners and curriculum developers as well as policy makers looking to increase the number of teachers who are prepared to deliver computing education
