ILOCOS NORTE NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL

CLOSING REMARKS

by Samuel Batara

The song says it all: "It hurts to say goodbye"

The hurt in goodbye lies in the uncertainty of what may happen next to the person who is leaving.

That is not the case with this batch of graduating students we have just robed.

You guys should have realized, how in your four years stay in the fold of your beloved alma mater, you have persistently studied hard to be vested with the knowledge, skills and values you will need for life. Your teachers have facilitated your learning experiences, striving hard to make everyone of you functionally literate, a creative and critical thinker, an independent problem solver and a work-oriented lifelong- learner.

In the Graduation Ceremonies this evening, we are going to send you out as graduates with the greatest confidence that you have received and are fully clothed with the necessary preparations for tertiary education.

Those of you who choose, or are constrained by circumstances, to forgo college, you can continue to realize your own potentials knowing that your school has outfitted you with the fundamental skills necessary for life-long learning. You are now ready to face life more creatively and more productively.

Our trust that you are armed with the tools necessary for you to actively participate in the affairs of society has been reinforced by the inspiring presence of and the invigorating utterances made by our Guest of Honor and Speaker, Dr. Miriam Pascua. Madam President, you are a most credible proof that something great can come out of Ilocos Norte National High School. The remarkable credentials, of an outstanding and flourishing alumna, affirm that your alma mater has bestowed its countless graduates the necessary foundations for achievement, in any chosen career.

To you dear parents, these graduating sons and daughters owe you the self-giving sacrifice you have endured for them, in the past 10 to 12 years of their schooling.
