Poem Text

Browning, Robert. "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." 1842. Poetry Foundation.

Summary

The speaker tells a story that happened almost 500 years ago in the German town of Hamelin. It was a beautiful place, but overrun with rats. The rats caused all sorts of trouble, fighting with the dogs, bothering women, ruining all the food, and even biting babies' toes. The townspeople all got together to try to think of a solution. He led them away from the town and into the river, where they all drowned—except for one, who lived to tell the cautionary tale to other rats. The townspeople celebrated the reclamation of their homes, and the Piper went to collect his fee from the mayor. However, the mayor became nervous and refused to pay the agreed amount. Knowing that the work was already done and the rats couldn't come back to life, the mayor offered the Piper 50 guilders instead. They argued. Then the Piper went back into the street and played a different song. This time, instead of luring rats, the Piper's music called all the children in the town to him. The mayor and the other townspeople couldn't move and thought the children would be drowned.

At the last minute, the Piper changed direction and led all the children to the mountain. A magical door opened and closed behind them, sealing them away—all except a boy who was injured and lagged behind. Afterwards, the boy became melancholy thinking about the adventures all his friends were having in a magical land. The mayor sent out messengers offering the Piper whatever he wanted if he would bring the children back, but they never saw him again. The town commemorated the incident with a memorial and a message on a
