Neuroradiology Sahar Ahmad, Ye Wu, Yunzhi Huang, 2025-06-19 Pediatric neuroradiology is a subspecialty of radiology that focuses on the use of advanced neuroimaging techniques to study brain growth and to diagnose diseases and malformations in neonates, infants, toddlers, children, and adolescents. Recent technical and methodological developments and the use of artificial intelligence (AI) has improved the field of pediatric neuroradiology, resulting in enhanced diagnostic care, personalized treatments, and better patient outcomes. Pediatric neuroradiology plays a key role in diagnosing, characterizing, and monitoring the progression of neurological disorders in children. A wide variety of imaging techniques, including magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), computed tomography (CT), and ultrasound (US), are employed for the evaluation of conditions common among children. One of the most challenging aspects of pediatric neuroradiology is the need for age-specific considerations for processing and interpreting imaging exams in relation to different age groups due to the dynamic and ongoing development of the brain from neonacy to adolescence. This requires knowledge of early developing patterns in neurotypical subjects and development milestones Ambient Intelligence and Future Trends - Juan Manuel Corchado

Assistive Technology from Adapted Equipment to Inclusive Environments Association for the Advancement of Assistive Technology in Europe, 2009-08-21. The concept of Assistive Technology is moving away from adopting the most appropriate devices to overcome the limitations of users to the designing and setting up of total environments in which people can live, supported by suitable services and additional support devices integrated within the environment. These two perspectives are deeply intertwined, both from technological and social points of view, and the relationship between them currently represents the primary challenge for the field of Assistive Technology. This publication covers the proceedings of the 10th European Conference of the Association for the Advancement of Assistive Technology in Europe (<http://www.aaate.net>), the organisation which stimulates the advancement of assistive technology for the benefit of people with disabilities, including elderly people. This conference seeks to bridge the gap between these two complementary approaches, providing an opportunity to clarify differences and common points and better define future direction. Topics covered by the conference include technological innovation in assistive technology, the need for multidisciplinary approaches, equipment interconnectivity and compatibility, cultural aspects, and the acceptance of different approaches, and the role of Europe in building inclusion competence worldwide. Disability results not only from a person's intrinsic attributes but also from the context in which they live. This publication is a significant contribution to the advancement of inclusion for people living with a disability everywhere.
