WRITING A RESEARCH REPORT

A research report is an expanded paper that presents interpretations and analyses of a phenomenon based on experiments and previous information so that the readers can better understand it. It is a laborious work produced through formal investigation and scientific inquiry.

Parts of a Research Report

1. Title Page – contain an informative title that describes the content of the paper; the name of author/s, addresses or affiliations, and date of submission. Examples of an informative title are the following:

- a. Effects of Facebook on the Academic Achievement of first Year Students*
- b. Development and Validation of a Software for Detecting Plagiarism*

2. Abstract – contains the summary of the research findings and conclusions. It briefly presents the context of the study, research questions or objectives, methodology, major findings, conclusions, and sometimes implications. An abstract does not contain any citation or a great deal of statistical results. Its length ranges from 100 to 250 words.

3. Introduction – explains the current state of the field and identifies research gaps. It is also the part where the research focus is presented by addressing the identified gaps in the topic. It puts the research topic in context. It is usually three to five paragraphs long.

4. Literature Review – contains the summary and synthesis of all available sources directly related to the study. In a research report, the literature review is divided into two sections: related concepts and related studies.

Related concepts present some of the fundamental concepts needed by the readers to better understand the study. Concepts and theories are defined, explained, and described. Unlike related concepts, related studies are based on previously conducted studies directly related to the paper. Both the related concepts and studies will help the writer explain the phenomena that may arise in the study.

This section ends with a paragraph that synthesizes all of the studies presented and puts the study in context. Hence, the last paragraph may include the topic and specific research problems. The length may range from two to three pages. Note that some
