

Lesson Plan

Target task: writing a book review

Preparation: in the previous class, ask students to think of two books they've read and bring them to class. If it's not possible, ask them to collect information about the books on the internet.

Warm-up: Distribute between the students some books (make sure you bring books of different genres and types). Ask them to analyze, in pairs or small groups, the elements each book has. They should also pay attention to the cover, number of pages, contents, and some other elements you consider important. After some minutes, discuss in open class.

Pre-task: Give students the chart below (or draw on the board and ask them to copy):

	Book 1	Book 2
Title
Writer
Genre
Plot
Characters you liked/didn't like
Best/weakest parts of plot
Why you liked the book
When you read it

Individually, students complete the chart using the books they brought. Give them plenty of time to do this activity.
