

mRNA AND PROTEIN SYNTHESIS

mRNA produced in the nucleus of a cell carries out its mission in the cell's cytoplasm. This mRNA is a specific copy of an "order" copied from the DNA that carries the environmental genetic message to the cytoplasm. Thus, it is called messenger DNA, (mRNA). As the cytoplasm, mRNA directs the building of proteins. Proteins are made up of smaller molecules called amino acids. There does a cell contains the proper amino acids, how proteins are made? Production of proteins involves another kind of RNA. Another RNA (tRNA) brings specific amino acids to mRNA according to the code language of bases found on mRNA.

In this investigation, you will:

1. Use paper models to show how base changes in mRNA results only with the base changes in DNA.
2. Use paper models to show how tRNA molecules bring specific amino acids and understand the difference between building of proteins in cells.
3. Create the translation of mRNA code to a tRNA message and translate the mRNA to an amino acid code.
4. Study the molecular basis of genetic mutations.

PART I: RNA Transcription

You will that the RNA transcription results in a code along with being on DNA. You will know that the DNA transcription, that you know is the DNA code for RNA and RNA code from the previous lab, agree on code you use of the DNA along, the base pair, guanine, cytosine, adenine, and uracil. The transcription, using the left side of your RNA model (the side that has the sequence: guanine, adenine, guanine, adenine, guanine, and uracil) as a pattern, create RNA transcription code the proper matchers of the RNA code.

1. Use the RNA code using base pair match as they would if they were RNA replication?

Review of the RNA transcription code from the DNA pattern. (Use the DNA pattern that has up with its original right side (DNA, molecules "copy" transcription) during RNA transcription).
