

Soy Ignacio Forcadell, y me gusta pensar que, además de arquitecto, soy un viajero, un descubridor de la aventura y el descubrimiento que, desde pequeño, ha sido fascinante para mí. El Egipto faraónico y el Egipto de los grandes descubrimientos del siglo XIX y XX. Como con la literatura de Julio Verne, Ernst Hupel y Emilio Salgari entre otros y, más tarde, me he influenciado por Richard Burton, las narraciones de los grandes expedicioneros a las zonas o cualquier otro libro de aventuras. Recuerdo con especial cariño El camino más corto a China, Hunán y Vietnam.

El país de la sonrisa

La obra narra el día a día de una excavación arqueológica en un edificio cultural perteneciente al periodo del Egipto faraónico. Se trata del yacimiento de El Kurru, ubicado a escasos quinientos metros de las aguas de Nilo y a muy pocos kilómetros de gran yacimiento de Gizeh. Desde su descubrimiento se ha traído los grandes tesoros de Egipto. A medida de planta, se recorren en esta obra las singularidades de un trabajo tan unusual como es el de un arquitecto en un entorno arqueológico: se exponen las retos profesionales, las frustraciones y satisfacciones, las experiencias humanas con las gentes del lugar y con el resto de profesionales de diversas partes del mundo, se analiza el entorno y se deja que los sentimientos fluyan libremente. En definitiva, es un libro de aventuras.

Indica: al ser un diario de excavación el índice de capítulos es cada uno de los días de estancia en el yacimiento.

Intento de la obra: La excavación arqueológica quiere despertar interés, más si con un yacimiento del Egipto faraónico. Hay obras y documentales sobre los distintos descubrimientos de tumbas de esas épocas, pero hay muy poco sobre lo que supone formar parte de todo aquello, es un tema del que no hay casi nada publicado. Esta obra se centra en todo eso que no se narra.
