has been a tremendous explosion in the clinical theoretical and empirical literature related to the study of dissociation. This volume is the result of this significant expansion. Presently interest in the scientific and clinical progress in the field of dissociation is indicated by the following:

- 1 The explosion of conferences, workshops and seminars devoted to dissociative disorders treatment and research.
- 2 The emergence of NIMH supported investigations that focus on dissociation.
- 3 The burgeoning literature on dissociation. According to a 1992 bibliographic analysis of the field by Goettman et al (1992), 72% of all writings on the topic have appeared in the past decade with about 1000 published papers scattered across diverse disciplines and journals.
- 4 Current interest in dissociation as reflected in the appearance of major articles and special issues in respected psychology and psychiatry journals.
- 5 The initiation of a journal entitled Dissociation. Richard Kluft MD, Editor, devoted to the area.

Written for teachers, trainers and instructional designers, anyone who is responsible for designing or preparing instruction, this book begins with one basic premise: individual differences mediate learning at all levels and in all situations. That is, some learners find it easier or more difficult to learn some skills or to learn from certain forms of instruction because they vary in terms of aptitude, cognitive styles, personality or learning styles. This volume describes most of the major differences in a readable and accessible way and demonstrates how to design various forms of instruction and predict the ease with which learners will acquire different skills. Most books that discuss any learner differences focus on those that characterize special education populations, whereas this book focuses on normal learners. Designed as a handbook, this volume is structured to provide easy and consistent access
