

Accounting Review

Chapter 1 - Introduction to Accounting

Accounting: the process of identifying, measuring, and communicating economic information to permit informed judgements and decision by users of the information.

- Recognizes that accounting is a process concerned with capturing business events, recording financial effect, summarizing/reporting those effects, and interpreting the results
- It's concerned with both financial and non-financial information
- Provides a way to prove that the managers have acted in the shareholder's best interests
- Main purpose is to support informed judgements/ decision making by users (USERS of financial information: stakeholders, government (CRA), etc. except NOT MANAGERS because they could be biased)

Accountability: a manager acts responsibly and provides assurance to stakeholders through the process of accounting

Stewardship: businesses are entrusted to the care of managers

3 Accounting Functions:

- 1) Scorekeeping: capturing, recording, summarizing, and reporting financial performance.
- 2) Attention to directing: drawing the attention of managers to, and assisting in the interpretation of, business performance, particularly in terms of the comparison between actual and planned performance.
- 3) Problem Solving: identifying the best choice from a range of alternatives.

Financial accounting: financial reports are prepared to provide information to external and internal users (ex. scorekeeping).

- Regulated by GAAP (generally accepted accounting principles) - outlined by the IFRS (international financial reporting standards)
- Canadian companies must adhere to specific guidelines (like reporting income when earned, not when the money is received).
- Financial standards create a fair way by which to assess organizations for both tax and investing purposes

Role of a financial accountant: to ensure that financial transactions and reports are prepared in accordance with regulations, and to provide accountability to the stakeholders, as well as create an equitable, and fair basis for assessing business performance

- Mainly concerned with external reporting

Management accounting: activities that take place through 3 interrelated function, all part of the roles financial and non-financial managers (ex. attention to direction and problem solving)
