SIR HENRY PARKES STEPHEN. DANDO-COLLINS,2016      The Naked Australian Constitution Ian

Killey,2022-07-07 Despite the Australian Constitution having been one of the most stable since its commencement in 1901 it is becoming fatally flawed The Naked Australian Constitution examines these flaws and the lack of public appreciation of those defects This is due to several serious errors including the racial basis of its origin and the misleading nature of its text with the High Court having interpreted it in a remarkably subjective manner undermining the few express requirements and freedoms in the Constitution while also applying concepts that are not required by the constitutional text As a result the Constitution is now what the High Court says it is instead of what it was expected to be by its drafters Most Australians have no knowledge of the Constitution or its operation but with the growing subjective application of the Constitution this constitutional digression requires remedy by a Constitutional review Ian Killey argues that without review the Australian people will eventually see the Australian Constitution for what it is rapidly becoming an Emperor with no clothes

Religious Education and the Anglo-World Stephen Jackson,2020-03-31 Focusing on Australia Canada and New Zealand Religious Education and the Anglo World historiographically examines the relationship between empire and religious education The analysis centres on three formative eras in the development of religious education in each case firstly the foundational moments of publicly funded education in the mid to late nineteenth centuries when policy makers created largely Protestant systems of religious education and frequently denied Roman Catholics funding for private education Secondly the period from 1880 1960 during which campaigns to strengthen religious education emerged in each context Finally the era of decolonisation from the 1960s through the 1980s when publicly funded religious education was challenged by the loss of Britishness as a central ideal and Roman Catholics found unprecedented success in achieving state aid in many cases By bringing these disparate national literatures into conversation with one another Stephen Jackson calls for a greater transnational approach to the study of religious education in the Anglo World      Law in Australian Society Keiran

Major Thomas Greg Growden, 2019-07-23 Opinion is still sharply divided on whether Breaker Morant and his Australian co defendants were criminals who got what they deserved or scapegoats used by the British Empire Major Thomas the bush lawyer drafted in at the last minute to defend them is invariably depicted as either a hero or an incompetent fool Now for the first time Greg Growden attempts to unravel the truth about the lawyer and soldier who returned from South Africa a broken man Before the Boer War Major Thomas had been a pillar of his community He was a published poet newspaper proprietor lawyer and decorated soldier but defending Breaker Morant became the defining episode of his life The former King of Tenterfield endured a stunning fall from grace slipping into bankruptcy and imprisonment Thomas ended his days as an eccentric recluse his life ruined by the ignominy and frustration of finding himself on the wrong side of history For more than a century he has been a footnote in diverging historical arguments A proper hearing for Major Thomas is long overdue

The Industrious Child Worker Mary Nejedly, 2021-09-01 Studies of child labour have examined the experiences of child workers in agriculture mining and textile mills yet surprisingly little research has focused on child labour in manufacturing towns This book investigates the extent and nature of child labour in Birmingham and the West Midlands from the mid eighteenth century to the end of the nineteenth century It considers the economic contributions of child workers under the age of 14 and the impact of early work on their health and education Child labour in the region was not a short lived stage of the early Industrial Revolution but an integral part of industry throughout the nineteenth century Parents regarded their children as potentially valuable contributors to the family economy encouraging families to migrate from rural areas so that their children could work from an early age in the manufacture of pins nails buttons glass locks and guns as well as tin plating carpet weaving brass casting and other industries The demand for young workers in Birmingham was greater than that for adults in Mary Nejedly s detailed analysis the importance of children s earnings to the family economy becomes clear as well as the role played by child workers in industrialisation itself In view of the economic benefit of children s labour to families as well as employers both children s education and health could and did suffer As well as working at harmful processes that produced dangerous fumes and dust or exposed them to poisonous substances children also suffered injuries in the workplace mainly to the head eyes and fingers and were often subjected to ill treatment from adult workers The wide gulf in economic circumstances that existed between the families of skilled workers and those of unskilled workers unemployed workers or single parent families also becomes evident Attitudes towards childhood changed over the course of the period however with a greater emphasis being placed on the role of education for all children as a means of reducing pauperism and dependence on the poor rate Concerns about health also gradually emerged together with laws to limit work for children both by age and hours worked Mary Nejedly s clear eyed research sheds fresh light on the life of working children and increases our knowledge of an important aspect of social and economic history
