The Participant Christopher M. Kelty, 2020-01-21 Participation is everywhere today It has been formalized measured standardized scaled up network enabled and sent around the world Platforms algorithms and software offer to make participation easier but new technologies have had the opposite effect We find ourselves suspicious of how participation extracts our data or monetizes our emotions and the more procedural participation becomes the more it seems to recede from our grasp In this book Christopher M Kelty traces four stories of participation across the twentieth century showing how they are part of a much longer term problem in relation to the individual and collective experience of representative democracy Kelty argues that in the last century or so the power of participation has dwindled over time it has been formatted in ways that cramp and dwarf it even as the drive to participate has spread to nearly every kind of human endeavor all around the world The Participant is a historical ethnography of the concept of participation investigating how the concept has evolved into the form it takes today It is a book that asks Why do we participate And sometimes Why do we refuse

Making World Development Work Grégoire Leclerc, Charles A. S. Hall, 2007-06-16 The authors reexamine world development usually the province of economists as professionals trained in the natural sciences They show how we have and might use tested scientific and technical procedures and concepts as well as science itself to achieve much better results than what has been characteristic of the past Leclerc and Hall contend that to scholars with a scientific background the process of development and the economic logic behind it often look almost surrealistic The basic question at the foundation of this review is this Why should something so important as world development something capable of absorbing such vast sums of money and of human goodwill something that impacts the people and the environment so much continue to be organized and planned using economic techniques and theories that are both unconfirmed experimentally and proven to have led to development failures

A Clash of Paradigms: Response and Development in the South Pacific Suan Maiava, 2024-11-01 This title was first published in 2001 This study indicates that researchers have far to go in understanding and assessing how development projects work The author shows that often the perception of failure is not shared by those whom were intended to benefit She uses a case study of Samoan villagers introduced to cattle farming to examine the wider development process and challenge the conventional theories By drawing on people centred perspectives that give much greater weight to the role of culture in development the volume does not simply criticize development project management but suggests practical and positive ways forward encouraging spontaneous indigenous development which should be supported by projects where appropriate

Inclusive Aid Leslie Christine Groves, Rachel Barbara Hinton, 2013 Rapid and profound changes are taking place in international development The past two decades have promoted the ideals of participation and partnership yet key decisions affecting people's lives continue to be made without sufficient attention to the socio political realities of the countries in which they live Embedded working traditions vested interests and institutional inertia mean that old habits and cultures persist among the development community Planning continues as though it were free of unpredictable interactions among stakeholders This book is about the need to recognise the complex non linear nature of development assistance and how bureaucratic procedures and power relations hinder poverty reduction in the new aid environment The book begins with a conceptual and historical analysis of aid exposing the challenges and opportunities facing aid professionals today It argues for greater attention to accountability and the adoption of rights based approaches In section two practitioners policy makers and researchers discuss the realities of power and relationships from their experiences across sixteen countries Their accounts from government donors and civil society expose the highly politicised and dynamic aid environment in which they work Section three explores ways forward for aid agencies challenging existing political institutional and personal ways of working Authors describe procedural innovations as strategic ways to leverage change Breaking the barriers to ensure more inclusive aid will require visionary leadership and a courageous commitment to change Crucially the authors show how translating rhetoric into practice relies on changing the attitudes and behaviours of individual actors Only then is the ambitious agenda of the Millennium Development Goals likely to be met The result is an indispensable contribution to the understanding of how development assistance and poverty reduction can be most effectively delivered by the professionals and agencies involved
