a healthy diet is enabled by Fiji's whole of government commitment to improving food nutrition security there are competing priorities and points of incoherence that deter this particularly relating to economic growth A range of specific policy measures have been introduced in Fiji by different government sectors that influence all facets of the food system However capacities required to develop and deliver policies are limited across government primarily by the allocation of resources and technical expertise This reduces the effectiveness of existing policy measures to support healthy diets and the progression of new measures A range of gaps and opportunities exist among the policy measures identified and entry points lie throughout the food system and associated policy environment to improve dietary behaviour in Fiji

Islands of Inquiry Geoffrey Richard Clark, Sue O'Connor, Bryan Foss Leach, 2008-06-01 Many of the papers in this volume present new and innovative research into the processes of maritime colonisation processes that affect archaeological contexts from islands to continents Others shift focus from process to the archaeology of maritime places from the Bering to the Torres Straits providing highly detailed discussions of how living by and with the sea is woven into all elements of human life from subsistence to trade and to ritual Of equal importance are more abstract discussions of islands as natural places refashioned by human occupation either through the introduction of new organisms or new systems of production and consumption These transformation stories gain further texture and variety through close examinations of some of the more significant consequences of colonisation and migration particularly the creation of new cultural identities A final set of papers explores the ways in which the techniques of archaeological sciences have provided insights into the fauna of the islands and the human history of such places Provided by publisher
