Running Dry The Global Water Crisis Nonfiction Young Adult:

Running Dry Stuart A. Kallen, 2015-01-01 As the planet's human population explodes so does the demand for water. About one out of every nine people in the world does not have access to safe drinking water while one out of every five almost 1.5 billion humans lives in a region where water demand is outstripping supply. But as demand grows supplies do not. Climate change has led to severe drought, flooding and massive storms in key agricultural areas of the world. Industrial and agricultural water pollution threatens public health around the world. Environmental protection measures are not keeping up with energy production technologies such as fracking and the corn for fuel market all of which affect water usage rates and safety. Both developed and undeveloped areas of the world face challenges with water delivery infrastructure. For example undeveloped nations lack even the most basic water delivery systems. Millions of global citizens are without sanitation altogether polluting waterways with raw sewage. In the developed world water delivery infrastructures are aging and wasteful. Domestic and industrial overconsumption of water resources draws down supply capacity depleting Earth's freshwater resources at an alarming rate. And in the last few decades private corporations have begun to take over municipal water delivery buying the rights to freshwater supplies and selling bottled water all for large profits. As the cost of clean water rises many people can't afford the water they need for everyday use. Competition for clean water is increasing and the stakes couldn't be higher. Running Dry investigates some tough questions. In a crowded world with limited water supplies will we be able to deliver safe clean water to an increasingly thirsty world? Can governments, businesses and individuals work together to clean up and protect Earth's water resources? Are water conservation strategies enough to ensure a water rich future? Or will we run dry?

Trashing the Planet Stuart A. Kallen, 2017-08-01 On a global scale humans create around 2.6 trillion pounds of waste every year. None of this trash is harmless. Landfills and dumps leak toxic chemicals into soil and groundwater while incinerators release toxic gases and particles into the air. What can we do to keep garbage from swallowing up Earth? Reducing, reusing, recycling and upcycling are some of the answers. Learn more about the work of the US Environmental Protection Agency, the Ocean Cleanup Array, the zero waste movement and the many other government, business, research and youth efforts working to solve our planet's garbage crisis. Quill & Quire, 2002 The Writers

Pearce,2018-08-28 A new edition of the veteran science writer s groundbreaking work on the world s water crisis featuring all new reporting from the most recent global flashpoints Throughout history rivers have been our foremost source of fresh water for both agriculture and individual consumption but looming water scarcity threatens to cut global food production and cause conflict and unrest In this visionary book Fred Pearce takes readers around the world on a tour of the world s rivers to provide our most complete portrait yet of the growing global water crisis and its ramifications for us all With vivid on the ground reporting Pearce deftly weaves together the scientific economic and historic dimensions of the water crisis showing us its complex origins from waste to wrong headed engineering projects to high yield crop varieties that have saved developing countries from starvation but are now emptying their water reserves Pearce argues that the solution to the growing worldwide water shortage is more efficiency and a new water ethic based on managing the water cycle for maximum social benefit rather than narrow self interest
