then focuses on Bacon's Novum Organum The Advancement of Learning and De Augmentis in order to discern the theoretical rather than simply the empirical or utilitarian nature of his programme for the renovation of the natural sciences. The final part of the book draws startling links between Bacon and one of the twentieth century s most important historians philosophers of science. Thomas Kuhn discerning in Kuhn s work a reprise of many of Bacon's fundamental ideas despite. Kuhn s clear attempt to reject Bacon as a significant contributor to the way we think about scientific practice today. Desroches concludes then that Bacon was not simply the father of modern science he is still in the process of fathering it multiplayer games in which cooperating but non communicating players interact with a referee in an attempt to win a pre specified game On the one hand the nonlocal correlations that entanglement allows may enable players using it to develop new colluding strategies defeating previously secure protocols On the other the richness of this new resource may also be exploited in order to design new protocols providing solutions to problems previously deemed impossible We explore both aspects of this dual nature of entanglement putting limits on its strength while at the same time showing how it can be put to profit to solve new computational problems A major unresolved question on the computational complexity of multiplayer entangled games is the power of MIP the class of languages having entangled multi prover interactive proofs how does it relate to its purely classical analogue MIP which was completely characterized through the fundamental equation MIP NEXP Since the players may use entanglement to increase their odds at colluding against the verifier MIP could potentially be a much weaker class than MIP Indeed for a long time it has been an open question whether two entangled provers are more useful than a single prover In this thesis we resolve this question by showing that the class of languages having multiprover interactive proofs with entangled provers is at least as large as its classical counterpart NEXP is included in MIP At the heart of this result is an analysis of the multilinearity test of Babai Fortnow and Lund in the presence of entanglement The fact that this test remains sound gives a systematic way for a verifier to impose strong limits on the ability of entangled provers to collude against the verifier Gap amplification is a fundamental primitive in the study of classical multiplayer games While sequential repetition of a game always decreases the prover s maximum success probability at an exponential rate the fact that parallel repetition also achieves a gap amplification is a highly non trivial fact We show that gap amplification can be performed in parallel even in the presence of entanglement between the provers We adapt a technique which was originally introduced by Feige and Kilian and results in a polynomial rate of amplification The phenomenon of monogamy of entanglement states in first approximation that if two parties are maximally entangled then they cannot simultaneously be entangled with a third party We use this phenomenon in two distinct results In the first we show that the bits generated in our randomness expansion protocol are certifiably random even from the point of view of a quantum adversary who may share prior entanglement with the provers In addition we prove the security against quantum adversaries of a randomness efficient extractor construction originally due to Trevisan This lets us transform the high entropy bits that are generated in our protocol into ones that are almost indistinguishable from uniform by any adversary More generally we show how the monogamy of entanglement can be exploited to design multi prover interactive proof systems that are partially entanglement resistant Quantitative bounds on the monogamy of entanglement have generally been elusive and the analysis of our protocol demonstrates such a bound in a new context The nonlocal correlations that can be created by entangled players provide a statistical means of differentiating them from classical unentangled players This is the main idea behind Bell inequalities the violation of which demonstrates the nonlocality of quantum mechanics We show how this phenomenon may be exploited to design a protocol in which the bits produced by successful players necessarily contain a large quantity of fresh randomness. The presence of randomness is guaranteed irrespective of the provers actual strategy as long as the sole constraint of no signaling is respected. Hence a statistical certification for the presence of randomness a feat easily seen to be impossible to achieve classically. In order to manipulate the random bits produced in our protocol and make them useful in cryptography we give the first proof of security of a poly logarithmic seed extractor secure against quantum adversaries. To achieve this we adapt the reconstruction paradigm originally introduced by Trevisan to the quantum setting. We study other ways in which entanglement may be used in interactive proof systems by also allowing a quantum interaction between the referee and the players. We show that using entanglement the class of QMIP proof systems can be parallelized to only three rounds of interaction and made public coin a property that does not hold in the absence of entanglement between the provers
