

PEER REVIEW GUIDELINES

START WITH POSITIVITY

Begin by highlighting what works well in the piece. Positive feedback sets a constructive tone while fostering belief in oneself as a writer.

1

2

BALANCE IS KEY

Strive for a balance between pointing out strengths and suggesting areas for improvement to motivate growth while acknowledging the writer's efforts.

GET SPECIFIC

Offer specific examples and suggestions rather than general comments. This helps the writer pinpoint exactly what needs attention and how to enhance it.

3

4

RESPECT INDIVIDUAL VOICES

Encourage students to respect each other's writing style and voice. Peer review is about improving without imposing personal preferences.

TONE MATTERS

Emphasize the importance of delivering feedback respectfully and kindly. Constructive criticism should always be framed with empathy and understanding.

Review of the Department of Labor's Site Exposure Matrix Database Institute of Medicine, Board on the Health of Select Populations, Committee on the Review of the Department of Labor's Site Exposure Matrix (SEM) Database, 2013-04-14

Beginning with the development of the atomic bomb during World War II the United States continued to build nuclear weapons throughout the Cold War. Thousands of people mined and milled uranium, conducted research on nuclear warfare or worked in nuclear munitions factories around the country from the 1940s through the 1980s. Such work continues today albeit to a smaller extent. The Department of Energy (DOE) is now responsible for overseeing those sites and facilities many of which were and continue to be run by government contractors. The materials used at those sites were varied and ranged from the benign to the toxic and highly radioactive. Workers at DOE facilities often did not know the identity of the materials with which they worked and often were unaware of health risks related to their use. In many instances the work was considered top secret and employees were cautioned not to reveal any work related information to family or others. Workers could be exposed to both radioactive and nonradioactive toxic substances for weeks or even years. Consequently some of the workers have developed health problems and continue to have concerns about potential health effects of their exposures to occupational hazards during their employment in the nuclear weapons industry. In response to the concerns expressed by workers and their representatives, DOL asked the Institute of Medicine (IOM) to review the SEM database and its use of a particular database, Haz Map, as the source of its toxic substance occupational disease links. Accordingly, this IOM consensus report reflects careful consideration of its charge by the committee and describes the strengths and shortcomings of both. To complete its task, IOM formed an ad hoc committee of experts in occupational medicine, toxicology, epidemiology, industrial hygiene, public health, and biostatistics to conduct an 18-month study to review the scientific rigor of the SEM database. The committee held two public meetings at which it heard from DOL, Division of Energy Employee Occupational Illness Compensation (DEEOIC) representatives, the DOL contractor that developed the SEM database, the developer of the Haz Map database, DOE worker advocacy groups, and several individual workers. The committee also submitted written questions to DOL to seek clarification of specific issues and received written responses from DEEOIC. The committee's report considers both the strengths and weaknesses of the SEM and the Haz Map databases, recognizing that the latter was developed first and for a different purpose. The committee then discusses its findings and recommends improvements that could be made in both databases with a focus on enhancing the usability of SEM for both DOL claims examiners and for former DOE workers and their representatives. Review of the Department of Labor's Site Exposure Matrix Database summarizes the committee's findings.

Software Engineering Reviews and Audits Boyd L. Summers, 2011-01-07. Indonesia A. Chaedar Alwasilah, Judith Puncuchar, 2018-04-01 This book is a concrete solution to the challenges in developing higher education in Indonesia. The proposed perspectives and ideas are ideal to be developed by teachers and lecturers in their own classroom. The two best parts of this book are 1 how the educators especially in universities should form critical thinking habit in their classroom through respectful and scholarly discussion and 2 how universities should become the centre of teaching for learning. Those are vital as educating today's students is our best investment to develop their willingness of life long learning and the ability of critical thinking. In the future these students will determine the fate of Indonesia. Therefore let's empower higher education in Indonesia by applying the constructive suggestions proposed in this book.

Digital Technology and the Practices of Humanities Research Jennifer Edmond, 2020-01-30 How does technology impact research practices in the humanities? How does digitisation shape scholarly identity? How do we negotiate trust in the digital realm? What is scholarship? What forms can it take and how does it acquire authority? This diverse set of essays demonstrates the importance of asking such questions, bringing together established and emerging scholars from a variety of disciplines at a time when data is increasingly being incorporated as an input and output in humanities sources and publications. Major themes addressed include the changing nature of scholarly publishing in a digital age, the different kinds of gatekeepers for scholarship and the difficulties of effectively assessing the impact of digital resources. The essays bring theoretical and practical perspectives into conversation, offering readers not only comprehensive examinations of past and present discourse on digital scholarship but tightly focused case studies. This timely volume illuminates the different forces underlying the shifting practices in humanities research today, with especial focus on how humanists take ownership of and are empowered by technology in unexpected ways. Digital Technology and the Practices of Humanities Research is essential reading for scholars, students and general readers interested in the changing culture of research practices in the humanities and in the future of the digital humanities on the whole.
