

Due Tomorrow, Do Tomorrow

I hope I never again witness such academic injustice as I did that fateful day in Mrs. Foley's 8th grade English class. We had a persuasive essay due on Monday morning regarding the new school levy on the ballot. Mrs. Foley snaked through the aisles collecting the papers. For weeks she had been pestering us about starting our papers early and not waiting until the weekend, let alone Monday morning at 6 am to complete them. She believed that there was no way anyone could possibly produce an adequate paper without properly preparing for and writing multiple drafts first. She claimed she would be able to simply read through the first paragraph and her sixth sense teacher senses would start tingling.

I really and truly had every intention of starting that paper days in advance. I wanted to work at it word by word, and then have the time to go back and revise. But, for whatever reason— my plans just did not work out. Every time I would sit down to type the paper I would end up alphabetizing my CDs or refolding all of the clothes in my dresser. I had never been so productive in my life. However, after several hours of color coordinating, alphabetizing and organizing, there sat my essay, untouched.

Sunday evening around 8 p.m. just as Desperate Housewives was about to come on, I decided enough was enough. This paper needed to be done. Tomorrow morning. Before school. So, I set my alarm to wake me up about an hour before usual, and I woke up the next morning and sat down at my computer and started to type. Never had a paper been so easy to generate. I was amazed, and I felt confident in my writing.

As Mrs. Foley collected my paper, I watched her quickly look over it and turn to me with a grin of approval. The next week when she handed them back, she announced to the class that she was very proud of my paper. She said it was evident that I had given much thought, time and Comment [LP1]: I think this is a very good opening. I like the use of personification as it leads in to your discussion of procrastination, and I love the rising of this section.

Comment [LP2]: This was an interesting comment. I think a lot of people would agree that they do not like procrastinating-would prefer to get the task early, but that's simply not the reality. They buy into the idea that procrastination probably leads to poorer writing, while getting the task early will produce a stronger paper.

Comment [LP3]: No reflection, why was that hard to get started on it?

Academic performance is an unavoidable topic for educational scientists instructional experts students faculty staff academic managers parents families and policymakers While student academic performance is a topic of passionate discussion it is also interconnected with both faculty staff and higher education institutions Achieving academic success requires more than just the efforts of the student The teaching profession in higher education increasingly demands measurable results to attest to its efficiency And the need for the accountability required from higher education institutions tends to influence institutional strategic plans according to tangible and measurable goals This book will aim to cover the different perspectives of academic performance placing on the stage the different actors in higher education students faculty and institutions Interdiscipline Petar Ramadanovic,2021-11-29 This book brings together two different discussions on the value of the humanities and a broader debate on interdisciplinary scholarship in order to propose a new way beyond current threats to the humanities Petar Ramadanovic offers nothing short of a drastic rehaul of our approaches to literary scholarship the humanities and university systems Beginning with an analysis of what is often referred to as the crises in the humanities the author looks at the specifics of literary studies but also issues around working conditions for academics From precarity and pay conditions to peer review the book has practical as well as theoretical implications that will resonate throughout the humanities While most books defending the humanities emphasize the uniqueness of the subject or area Ramadanovic does the opposite emphasizing the need for interdisciplinarity and combined knowledge This proposal is then fully explored through literary studies and its potential throughout the humanities and beyond into the sciences Interdiscipline is not just a defense of literature and the humanities it offers a clear and inspiring pathway forwards drawing on all disciplines to show their cultural and social significance The book is important reading for all scholars of literary studies and also throughout the humanities
