Moments of Reflection Jean Howarth, Mike Walton,1995 This collection of readings is designed for use in tutor group or year group assemblies and is based around 39 weekly themes which comply with the 1988 Education Act The themes include spiritual awareness living as a family healing friendship human rights and inter cultural harmony The Aquatic World of Penguins David G Ainley, Rory P Wilson,2023-11-10 Centuries ago when penguins were first encountered by European explorers they were not thought to be birds but rather a fish like relative Subsequent accumulation of knowledge has shown penguins to be an avian species with unrivaled aquatic attributes owing to a number of evolutionary adaptations shape change low drag ability to regulate buoyancy and extraordinary surface compliancy from their featheration They are indeed the most extremely specialized diving bird having given up flight which otherwise is hugely advantageous to the benefit of underwater prowess such as speed maneuverability and an ability to exploit an extraordinary range of depths This flightlessness however also comes with costs that are substantial for a seabird such as the inability to cover large distances quickly in reaction to ephemeral prey and the energy needed to cope with moving through an aqueous environment which is more resistant than air For penguins the high energetic costs in exploiting the ocean environment thus makes them especially sensitive to changes in food availability or their access to their prey While a number of penguin books cover the natural history mainly of breeding aspects few address in much detail the incredible aquatic nature of these creatures A huge amount of information has been amassed over recent past decades thanks to dramatic advances in microelectronics bio logging and maturation of some long term studies of penguin life history This work represents an integration of all these data with charts maps and graphs along with richly illustrated photos by experts in the field

The Gas Mask in Interwar Germany Peter

Thompson,2023-05-25 Exploring the history of the gas mask in Germany from 1915 to the eve of the Second World War Peter Thompson traces how chemical weapons and protective technologies like the gas mask produced new relationships to danger risk management and mastery in the modern age of mass destruction Recounting the apocalyptic visions of chemical death that circulated in interwar Germany he argues that while everyday encounters with the gas mask tended to exacerbate fears the gas mask also came to symbolize debates about the development of military and chemical technologies in the Weimar Republic and the Third Reich He underscores how the gas mask was tied into the creation of an exclusionary national community under the Nazis and the altered perception of environmental danger in the second half of the twentieth century As this innovative new history shows chemical warfare and protection technologies came to represent poignant visions of the German future

Handmade films stretch back to cinema's beginnings yet until now their rich history has been neglected. Process Cinema is the first book to trace the development of handmade and hand-processed film in its historical and contemporary contexts and from a global perspective. Mapping the genealogy of handmade film and uncovering confluences, influences and interstices between various international movements, sites and practices, Process Cinema positions the resurgence of handmade and process cinema as a counter practice to the rise of digital filmmaking. This volume brings together a range of renowned academics and artists to examine contemporary artisanal films, DIY labs and filmmakers typically left out of the avant-garde canon, addressing the convergence between the analog and the digital in contemporary process cinema. Contributors investigate the history of process cinema, unscripted improvisatory manipulation of the physicality of film, with chapters on pioneering filmmakers such as Len Lye and Marie Menken, while others discuss an international array of collectives devoted to processing films in artist-run labs from South Korea to Finland, Australia to Austria and Greenland to Morocco, along with historical and contemporary practices in Canada and the United States. Addressing the turn to a new sustainable creative ecology that is central to handmade films in the twenty-first century and that defines today's reinvigorated film cultures, Process Cinema features some of the most beautiful handcrafted films and the most forward-thinking filmmakers within a global context. Michael Jackson and the Blackface Mask Harriet J. Manning, 2016-04-22

Blackface minstrelsy, the nineteenth-century performance practice in which ideas and images of blackness were constructed and theatricalized by and for whites, continues to permeate contemporary popular music and its audience. Harriet J. Manning argues that this legacy is nowhere more evident than with Michael Jackson, in whom minstrelsy's gestures and tropes are embedded. During the nineteenth century, blackface minstrelsy held together a multitude of meanings, and when black entertainers took to the stage, this complexity was compounded. Minstrelsy became an arena in which black stereotypes were at once enforced and critiqued. This body of contradiction behind the blackface mask provides an effective approach to try and understand Jackson, a cultural figure about whom more questions than answers have been generated. Symbolized by his own whiteface mask, Jackson was at once raced and raceless, and this ambiguity allowed him to serve a whole host of others' needs. A function of the mask that has run long and deep through its tortuous history, indeed Manning argues that minstrelsy's assumptions and uses have been fundamental to the troubles and controversies with which Jackson
