Pushed by necessity but enabled by its existing social and educational policies Cuba in the 1990s launched the most extensive program of urban sustainable agriculture in the world This study is to date the only book length investigation in either English or Spanish of this important national experiment in transforming the environmental economic and social nature of today's dominant system of producing food. At Campbell University of Utah, as large scale industrial agriculture comes under increasing scrutiny because of its petroleum and petrochemical based input costs and environmentally objectionable consequences, increasing attention has been focused on sustainable local and agro ecological techniques in food production. Cuba was forced by historical circumstances to be one of the pioneers in the massive application of these techniques. After the demise of the Soviet Union in the early 1990s, Cuba was left without access to external support needed to carry on with industrial agriculture. The economic crisis led the country to reconsider their former models of resource management. Cuba retooled its agricultural programs to focus on urban agriculture, sustainable ecologically sound farming close to densely populated areas. Food now takes far less time to get to the people who are now better nourished because they have easier access to whole foods. Moreover, urban farming has become a source of national pride. Cuba has one of the best urban agriculture programs in the world with a thousand fold increase in urban agricultural output since 1994. Sinan Koont has spent the last several years researching urban agriculture in Cuba including field work at many sustainable farms on the island. He tells the story of why and how Cuba was able to turn to urban food production on a large scale with minimal use of chemicals, petroleum and machinery and of the successes it achieved along with the continuing difficulties it still faces in reducing its need for food imports. Sinan Koont is associate professor of economics at Dickinson College. Invisible No More Pedro Noguera, Aída Hurtado, Edward Fergus, 2013-06-17. Latino men and boys in the United States are confronted with a wide variety of hardships that are not easily explained or understood. They are populating prisons, dropping out of high school and are becoming overrepresented in the service industry at alarming degrees. Young Latino men especially have among the lowest wages earned in the country, a rapidly growing rate of HIV/AIDS and one of the highest mortality rates due to homicide. Although there has been growing interest in the status of men in American society, there is a glaring lack of research and scholarly work available on Latino men and boys. This groundbreaking interdisciplinary volume edited by renowned scholars Pedro Noguera, Aída Hurtado and Edward Fergus addresses the dearth of scholarship and information about Latino men and boys to further our understanding of the unique challenges and obstacles that they confront during this historical moment. The contributors represent a cross section of disciplines from health, criminal justice, education, literature, psychology, economics, labor, sociology and more. By drawing attention to the sweeping issues facing this segment of the population, this volume offers research and policy, a set of principles and overarching guidelines for decreasing the invisibility and thus the disenfranchisement of Latino men and boys. Manual of Techniques in Invertebrate Pathology Lawrence A.
