A Democracy Is Born Matthew J. Morgan, 2007-09-30 In October 2004 more than eight million citizens of Afghanistan turned out to vote in the first democratic election in the turbulent 5 000 year history of the country This incredible voter turnout in the face of horrific threats and actual bullets rockets and bombs was a shout of defiance and a significant setback to the former Taliban regime and their al Qaeda allies It was a stunning success and serious step forward for the Afghan people and for the United States in the campaign against international terrorism The change is more dramatic than the American Revolution in the aftermath of which the new American democracy maintained a representative form of government similar to its British roots The change is also more positive than the French Revolution which degenerated into tyranny and anarchy The Afghan Revolution of democratic governance albeit aided and guided by international military and political powers is thus one of the most historic events of our time Written by a former U S Army intelligence officer this book provides readers with a candid account of Afghanistan s first presidential election and its subsequent transition to democratic self governance In particular Morgan speaks to the security apparatus and the measures protecting the election The election s security process marked a defeat for the al Qaeda and Taliban terrorist insurgents attempting to frustrate Afghanistan s transformation into a democratic nation Morgan s narrative of Afghan development is interspersed with firsthand personal accounts from the author s eleven month deployment as an officer serving in the U S military in Afghanistan His stint there embedded within the United Nations in a civilian clothes role enables him to write from the perspective of a UN security officer offering insights beyond those that might be gained on the battlefield

Losing Afghanistan Noah Coburn, 2023-05-25 A 2016 study of the Afghanistan international intervention from perspective of an ambassador a Navy SEAL an Afghan businessman a wind energy engineer The US led intervention in Afghanistan mobilized troops funds and people on an international level not seen since World War II Hundreds of thousands of individuals and tens of billions of dollars flowed into the country But what was gained for Afghanistan or for the international community that footed the bill Why did development money not lead to more development Why did a military presence make things more dangerous Through the stories of four individuals an ambassador a Navy SEAL a young Afghan businessman and a wind energy engineer Noah Coburn weaves a vivid account of the challenges and contradictions of life during the intervention Looking particularly at the communities around Bagram Airbase this ethnography considers how Afghans viewed and attempted to use the intervention and how those at the base tried to understand the communities around them These compelling stories step outside the tired paradigms of unruly Afghan tribes an effective Taliban resistance and a corrupt Karzai government to show how the intervention became an entity unto itself one doomed to collapse under the weight of its own bureaucracy and contradictory intentions Praise for Losing Afghanistan Coburn's experienced eye demonstrates that understanding local culture is a two way street Highly recommended for Afghans or anyone puzzled by the policies of international military and civilian institutions and in need of practical advice on how to cope with their strange ways of thinking Thomas Barfield Boston University Rich in description and thick with ironies Losing Afghanistan reveals the insanities of a war run by and for contractors and by soldiers posing as development agents In this first hand account of war time Afghanistan Coburn navigates the various and sometimes shared assumptions of walled off foreigners and the world they created in which Afghans play but minor parts A quiet indictment Catherine Lutz Brown University Losing Afghanistan provides a unique window into the longest most costly US and international intervention since the Second World War Having spent over a decade researching and writing about Afghanistan living with ordinary Afghans and a bewildering array of international actors Coburn illuminates the chasm between what ordinary Afghans think and want and what international actors assume and do and the frustration and disillusionment that resulted Michael Keating Associate Director Chatham House and Former UN Deputy Envoy to Afghanistan Kabul

Curtiss,M.S. Gordon,2006-01-16 As a result of the advancements in algorithms and the huge increase in speed of computers over the past decade electronic structure calculations have evolved into a valuable tool for characterizing surface species and for elucidating the pathways for their formation and reactivity It is also now possible to calculate including electric field effects STM images for surface structures To date the calculation of such images has been dominated by density functional methods primarily because the computational cost of curate wave function based calculations using either realistic cluster or slab models would be prohibitive DFT calculations have proven especially valuable for elucidating chemical processes on silicon and other semiconductor surfaces However it is also clear that some of the systems to which DFT methods have been applied have large non dynamical correlation effects which may not be properly handled by the current generation of Kohn Sham based density functionals For example our CASSCF calculations on the Si 001 acetylene system reveal that at some geometries there is extensive 86 configuration mixing This in turn could signal problems for DFT cal lations on these systems Some of these problem systems can be addressed using ONIOM or other layering methods treating the primary region of interest with a CASMP2 or other multireference based method and treating the secondary region by a lower level of electronic structure theory or by use of a molecular mechanics method ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS
